BLAME KAISER'S SONS IN REVOLT

RAP PRINCES FOR ROLE IN PLOT

Goering Brands Scions of Hohenzollern 'Worse Than Von Schleicher'

By TOM WILHELM

Staff Correspondent International News
BERLIN, July 3 (INS).—Chancellor Adolf Hitler closed the books today on the "rebellion" which he crushed Saturday with an iron hand.

The chancellor ordered cessation of all further reprisals against those who opposed his rule in an outbreak of violence and death that held Germany in terror for forty-eight hours.

Meantime Germany was stirred by reports that the former Crown Prince Friedrich Wilhelm and his brother, Prince August Wilhelm, had been ordered to leave Germany within three days. The crown prince was reportedly already en route to Doorn, Holland, to join his father, the former kaiser, in exile.

However, the secretary of the kaiser's household at Doorn denied this report as well as a London report the Friedrich Von Wilhelm had already arrived in Doorn.

Prince August Wilhelm, fourth son of the ex-kaiser, known as "Auwi" was reported still in Berlin.

TWO PRINCES ACCUSED

The agitation against the two sons of the house of Hohenzollern was understood to have been based on the accusation that they

PARALYSIS FADE-OUT PREDICTED

July 3.—While scientists and public health authorities predict that the present epidemic of infantile paralysis will probably "fade away" before the middle of next summer, the United States Health Department, represented by Dr. James P. Leake, is preparing to establish headquarters in Los Angeles until the danger is past.

Dr. Leake declared that fewer victims will suffer permanent paralysis than in any other outbreak. This he declared, was due to the stringent control of cases throughout the state. He has just completed a city-wide survey of the disease here.

Reports from Los Angeles indicate that a slight but steady decrease in the number of cases has been effected. There are 1624 cases throughout the state, 1164 in Los Angeles, 137 in Alameda County and 80 in San Francisco.

LATE * LATE * LATE EMPORIUM FOUNDER MURDERED

Police Find Second Body

Scott Hayes, aged 68, chairman of the board of the Emporium, was found dead early this morning at Baker Beach Mansion, his stately home at 34 Scenic Way. Police would not comment on the case, other than to say that the founder of the successful dry goods palace on Market street was shot twice. Hayes body was discovered in his study by the family chauffeur, Mr. Roland Jones.

When the police searched the grounds, they also found the body of Howard Black, 41, an employee of the Continental Detective Agency. Apparently Black had been shot twice in the head while seated in a car parked near the garage, on the grounds of the mansion.

BOOZE ORGY CLIMAXED BY DEATH

Man and Wife Seized After Victim Dies in Back Hills Shooting Affray

Riddled by shotgun wounds received in a back-hills murder mystery climaxing a drinking spree, Ernest Bowersmith, 50, of Oakland, died early today, and a middle-aged housewife and her husband were held in an Oakland jail for investigation in connection with the crime.

Police also sought the victim's brother, Herbert, as the result of Bowersmith's deathbed statement.

"My brother shot me. He was drunk and I hid a half-gallon of liquor so he wouldn't drink any more. When I wouldn't tell him where it was, he shot me."

Police, however, arrested Mrs. Rosie Smith, 47, and her husband, Orie, 49, when a blood-stained shotgun was found in the ramshackle Smith Cottage adjoining the Bowersmith shack on Leona Park Heights in the Oakland hills.

Smith, seized when he returned to his home at 1:30 a.m., two hours after the slaying, explained the blood stains on the weapon with this statement:

"I killed a chicken yesterday morning. I shot it with the gun and then had to club it to death with the butt. That's how the bloodstains got there."

Smith said he had been visiting friends in Alameda all evening. He denied any knowledge of the murder.

The slaying came to light when Mrs. Smith discovered a mortician at the end of the Leona Height streetcar line and told him.

"A man has been shot. Will you tell them to send an ambulance when you get to town?"

Officers George Kelly and T. P. Potts, arriving on the scene with the ambulance, found Bowersmith lying unconscious in his shack, while in the Smith home they discovered the shotgun with one chamber fired.

Flaming Gas Kills 2 in Car

Drenched by flaming gasoline, two unidentified men were burned to death early today when the fuel tank of their car exploded in a highway crash twelve miles north of Salinas, on the Prunedale cutoff.

The car in which the charred bodies were found was registered to A. Gnesa, Box 36, Gonzalez, Monterey County.

Melvin McDonald of Oakland and John Sabin of San Francisco told police they were driving an apricot truck along the highway when the automobile crashed into them.

The victims, pinned under the flaming wreckage, died before they could be extricated.

Marie Dressler Still Clings to Life

SANTA BARBARA, July 2. (INS).—Holding her own in her gallant battle against death, Marie Dressler, 63, beloved actress of stage and screen, today was reported as being "comparatively comfortable."

Those close to the trooper still fear that there can be no recovery from the complication of cancer and a weak heart.

Dr. Franklin R. Nuzum, attending physician, issued the following bulletin.

"Miss Dressler passed a quiet night and is comparatively comfortable this morning. Her pulse, temperature and respiration remain as on the previous day."

MAN DIES, 3 SLUGGED IN BAY STRIKE BATTLES

Ominous quiet reigned on the San Francisco waterfront this morning as "peaceful picketing" in Oakland left one man reported near death and two others painfully injured from assaults by alleged strikers.

A fourth victim, Wayne Thor, 40, stoking longshoreman, 1616 Stanage Avenue, Berkeley, was found slumped in death over the wheel of his automobile.

Coroner Grant D. Miller, ordered an inquest despite the fact that police said Thor's death was apparently due to natural causes.

In another assault, Lloyd Carter, 38, Woodland truck driver, told police he was beaten by four strike sluggers in a restaurant at Sixth and Folsom streets, San Francisco.

Carter was treated for a fractured nose and facial lacerations at the Central Emergency Hospital.

BEATEN BY FOUR

The victim reported to the police that he was driving a load of fiber boxes to Petaluma and stopped at the restaurant when four strikers entered and beat him when he admitted to owning the truck.

Two arrests were made in San Francisco, three in the East Bay.

Arthur Walstrom, 52, junior officer of the S.S. Texmar, and William Dadds, 37, 576 Clay street, a strike picket, were held for disturbing the peace following a street fight in which Walstrom assertedly pulled a .25 caliber revolver on Dadds.

Walstrom was held for trial on July 10, while Dadds was freed for lack of evidence.

Fireworks Blaze Sweeps Oregon City

CASCADE LOCKS, Ore., July 3. (AP).—The Donnellville Dam Fourth of July celebration continued here today while plans were being made to rebuild the town's business section which was razed by a $50,000.00 fire last night.

Originating in a stock of fireworks, the blaze interrupted the first night of the celebration and threatened to sweep the town and enter timber lands outside.

The Catholic Church, the Odd Fellows Hall and the Post Office were among the larger buildings burned.

Cowboy Wins Heart of Pretty Teacher

TUCSON, Ariz., July 3. (INS).—The old western story of a pretty girl from the east who is wooed in a whirlwind desert courtship by a dashing cowboy has come true for Betty Lavock, educator of Dayton, Ohio, and A. Studley Hart of Elgin, Ariz.

The two were on a honeymoon in the southwest today after a secret wedding.

In Oakland three strike breakers were arrested while riding in a car with a police escort, charged with possession of a knife and a razor. The trio gave their names as Sam Winfree, Bob Evans and Charles Plunkett.

John Welch, chief engineer of the S.S. Golden Tide, was slugged when he came off the ship at the Moore shipyards in Alameda.

Court cases connected with strike violence continued today before Municipal Judge Sylvain J. Lazarus.

KEEP AWAY FROM WATERFRONT SAYS QUINN

Don't go near the waterfront!

That warning was issued today to San Franciscans by Police Chief William J. Quinn as a precaution to innocent bystanders against being injured in any possible violence incident to the marine strike.

"While I am confident that I have enough men to patrol the strike area today," Quinn said, "thrill-seekers and others with no business on the waterfront will seriously hamper police movement. If trouble does develop, the innocent spectator may be in danger."

Warsaw Acclaims Soda Pop Fliers

WARSAW, July 3. (AP).—Poland rousingly acclaimed today two of its native sons, Joseph and Benjamin Adamowicz of Brooklyn, for their transatlantic flight.

The brothers landed here late yesterday after a hop from Torun, Poland.

Thousands roared a welcome to the soda pop manufacturers. Among those greeting them was John Cudahy, the American Ambassador.

Dern To See Panama

WASHINGTON, July 3. (AP).—Secretary of War Dern will sail from New York on the steamship Ancon today for an extensive inspection trip to the Panama Canal Zone. Dern will make a brief stop at Port-Au-Prince, Haiti.

I.C.C. Won't Interfere

WASHINGTON, July 2. (AP).—The Interstate Commerce Commission today refused to interfere with operation by the Railway Express Agency of a motor transport corporation as a subsidiary.

DRIVE CROWDS FROM S.F. DOCKS

2500 Strikers Gathering As Police Arrest Two in First Skirmish

At noon yesterday, the hour set for the opening of the port, police were to be found driving crowds of strikers off the waterfront, clearing the Embarcadero as new pickets pushed up in a "flank" move. Rincon Hill and other elevations were thronged with persons awaiting possible conflict between police and strikers when the first trucks leave the docks.

Clashing with the police as the Embarcadero was cleared of all picketers, 300 strikers were driven back across the waterfront thoroughfare and two blocks from the docks.

Fifty police, mounted on horses and motorcycles and in radio cars, backed the crowd of picketers to Second and Townsend streets from in front of pier 38, where they offered stubborn resistance.

Orders to clear the waterfront of all persons not there on legal business were issued by Chief of Police William J. Quinn.

2500 GATHERING

Meanwhile, as tension mounted to a high pitch, with a force of 680 police mobilized for any emergency, a throng of 2500 strikers and sympathizers was reported gathered on the outskirts of the Embarcadero.

All side streets leading to the waterfront were blocked by police details, armed with tear gas, clubs and riot guns.

THROUGH TALKING

Officials of the Industrial Association, it was learned, said they were "through talking and will act without further words." The opening will go through as planned, they indicated, with only direct intervention from President Roosevelt to halt it this time.

Assistant Secretary of Labor Edward F. McGrady announced at a meeting of the President's board that one more attempt would be made to defer action by the industrial group.

McGrady, member of the President's board, announced that the longshoremen have been asked to take a referendum on submitting to arbitration and to report by Thursday midnight the results of the vote.

If the strikers "vote against arbitration, the board will invoke its full power under the labor disputes act and call a forced election," McGrady said.

Seen and Heard in San Francisco's Hotel Lobbies

ALVA WILSON, west coast representative for the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel of New York, has opened his office at the St. Francis. Wilson, assistant manager of the St. Francis bureau, is to handle the Waldorf's Australian and Oriental business.

BORIS KARLOFF, film villain, has taken time off to journey here with the Hollywood cricket team for a two-game series with the local Barbarians. The cricketers played yesterday at Kentfield and play again today at Julius Kahn Playground here. Karloff, a thoroughgoing Britisher, is one of the film colony's most ardent cricket fans. C. Aubrey Smith, English character actor, is also here with the cricket team. Both actors are at the Sir Francis Drake.

MRS. AGNES HARMON of New Jersey is a guest of the St. Francis Hotel. She is visiting her nephew, Mr. Howard Kern and his wife Ann of 2405 Pacific Avenue. Mrs. Harmon's late husband was founder and Chairman of the Harmon Chemical Corporation in Paramus, New Jersey.

FLAY KAISER'S SONS FOR PLOTTING

were "more guilty than Von Schleicher" in the projected toppling of the Nazi regime.

General Kurt Von Schleicher, a former chancellor, was one of the victims of Hitler's coup to crush the revolt. He and his wife were shot while "resisting arrest" at his home in a peaceful suburb.

It was reported that "Auwi" was badly frightened over the bloody events of the last weekend. He was member of the staff of Captain Karl Ernst, commander of the Berlin storm troops. He was one of the few members of Ernst's staff to go unpunished and most of them are reported to have been executed.

"Auwi", it was learned, was called before General Hermann Wilhelm Goering, Prussian premier and new "strong man" of the Hitler regime since the "blotting out" of Roehm.

"If you had any sense you would blow out your brains," Goering was quoted as having told the kaiser's cowed and trembling son, "but you haven't so you better go home to bed."

There was indication that Vice Chancellor Franz Von Papen would not be further molested or punished for his reputed opposition to Nazi policies.

SAVED BY PRESIDENT

The intervention of President Von Hindenburg was regarded as having saved Von Papen from ouster from the cabinet, if not more drastic punishment. It was authentically reported that Hindenburg yesterday had demanded that his friend, Von Papen, be protected and had made the reichswehr, or government troops, responsible for his safety.

As the storm of violence recedes and the events of the last weekend take on perspective, it was revealed that there were really three alleged "conspiracies" which stirred Chancellor Hitler to his violent counter revolutionary coup.

Captain Roehm, it was declared, wanted to consolidate his position as head of the storm troops and confidante of Hitler, from which he believed himself slipping.

Will Pauper Be King?

'Doc' J. Willard Looks at Horses

Thoroughbred horses are the royalty of the animal kingdom. Outside the secret meetings of the match makers of the minor European houses, no one evaluates blood lines and ancestry like the horse player. The odds in the sport of kings are the carefully cultivated fruits of a patient study of the heredity of the pretenders to the throne.

Yet, of all the progeny of the greatest equine sires and dames, only a very few become monarchs of the track. Therefore, when a pauper rises to become a prince, it can be as devastating to the odds makers as revolution is to the regal. Such a horse is Sundowner, the magnificent four-year-old from New South Wales in the land of downunder, brought to this country by Mr. Scott Hayes.

Tomorrow's Independence Cup will be the great test of the Australian stallion wearing the blue and white of the Paisley Ranch. This reporter can hardly think about picking a winner in the Fourth of July extravaganza at 1 p.m. tomorrow at Falmouth without being tempted to go with the unknown horse. Certain Eastern racing groups would love to tip the odds their way if Sundowner can be moved East under their control. Some who do not like the commotion his arrival would entail would probably rather he remain in California. Yet it is sure that smart money cannot make the choice in tomorrow's race on lineage alone. That is something that few devotees of the earthen ring can resist.

LOVE CONTRACT LEADS TO KNIFING OF TWO

Cite Jealousy in Attempt at Slaying

To keep jealousy out of their love affair, Edgar M. Ansley, 58, a cook, and Lillian Lena Davis, 20, signed a weird love contract.

It was written in pencil on old brown butcher's paper—and it provided that in return for the payment of Miss Davis' rent by Ashley she should give him three hours time—three times a week—at her own convenience.

But today, jealousy had triumphed. The contract, blood stained, was in the hands of detectives as evidence of Ansley's asserted attempt to kill the woman with a butcher knife, and then commit suicide.

Ansley was in the prison ward of General Hospital, with both wrists deeply slashed, pale from lack of blood.

Miss Davis was in another ward of the same hospital, with a gash in her throat and a cut in her right thigh.

Both will recover. Sidney Thompson, who lives in the apartment house of which Miss Davis was manager, was awakened by low moans at his hall door.

Thompson found Miss Davis, bleeding and leaning against the wall, scarcely able to speak.

"Ed... Ed cut me..." she gasped. Then she fell to the floor.

The love contract, found in the rooms, reads as follows:

"A contract between E.M. Ansley and Lillian Davis.

"In consideration of the fact that E.M. Ansley does hereby agree to cancel all indebtedness of every kind now due him by Lillian Davis, and mark said debt paid in full.

"Lillian Davis does hereby agree to give E. M. Ansley not less than three hours each night of her time, for three nights each week, the nights not to be any certain nights in the week, but such three nights each week as shall suit the convenience of Lillian Davis, the hours to be between 6 pm and 3 am of the same night.

"It is further agreed that E.M. Ansley shall keep the rent of their apartment paid in advance at all times, and Lillian Davis shall be responsible for the gas and light bills as they shall occur.

"We, E.M. Ansley, and Lillian Davis, do hereby agree to abide by this contract, and the terms of this are to be known only to us two.

(Signed) "Lillian Davis,

"E. M. Ansley."

Court Bans Jail For Non-Support

DENVER, July 2, (INS).—Refusing to add to the burden of these perturbed times, Judge George F. Dunklee in district court here saved David Ballard from being jailed for failure to give his wife and two children under her care $2.00 weekly.

"Nearly a third of the United States population are paupers and not making enough to live on," Judge Dunklee said, "and if the court should put him in jail, it will have done some damage and no good."

Testimony brought out that Ballard, who earns $11.00 a week, supported two sons and also gave his wife money occasionally.

Broker Denies He'll Wed Helen Jacobs

NEWTON, Mass., July 2, (AP).—Sheldon F. Fisher, prominent Boston advertising man, today had denied reports that he was engaged to marry Helen Jacobs of California, United States women's tennis champion.

"I am sorry to hear there is such a rumor," Fisher said. "There is absolutely nothing to it. We are good friends and that is all."

Fisher said the story was undoubtedly based on the fact that Miss Jacobs spent much of her time in his company while visiting Miss Alona Friend in Melrose last year.

HOLLYWOOD, July 2, (INS).—Marshal A. Neilan, veteran film director, today had petitioned the United States district court to adjudge him bankrupt.

Neilan said he was without assets and that his debts totaled $195,331.50, including an item of $66,249 owing the government for income taxes.

Hollywood mice thrive on poetry. Allisa Landi made the discovery when she opened a box that once contained manuscripts of her childhood attempts at verse. Only shredded paper remained of the author-actress' treasured juvenilia.

Ann Harding at Gate Tomorrow

"The Life of Vergie Winters," co-starring for the first time the charming Ann Harding and John Boles, opens at the Golden Gate Theater tomorrow in conjunction with a new stage show headed by Horace Heidt and his Californians.

As Vergie Winters, a small-town miliner, it is said Miss Harding gives a superb performance in a role entirely worthy of her exceptional talents.

Art Collector to Speak Thursday Evening

Noted collector of Oriental artifacts, Miss Ellen Pembroke, will speak to the Ladies Auxiliary of the local Elks Lodge on Thursday night, July 5, at 8 p.m. Miss Pembroke's address will focus on Chinese boxes. "Puzzle boxes fascinate me," says Miss Pembroke. "They range from simple boxes designed primarily for children to elaborately designed and carved boxes of all materials."

The Elks Auxiliary extends an invitation to the public to attend Thursday's meeting.

IN THE SOCIAL WHIRL

By Phoebe Newhart

MISS BARBARA MACAULEY, who was presented at the Court of St. James's early in June and is now enjoying a series of garden parties and other typically English summer diversions, is moving in a rhythm vastly different from that in which her brother, Edward Macauley Jr., finds himself this summer.

Young Macauley is at Lake Tahoe, where, for the next six weeks, he will be art instructor at a boy's camp. Outdoor lessons to a group of youngsters whose minds are on swimmin' and finshin' and eatin' is one of the wonders of the new technique of vacationing. Young Macauley is the son of Captain and Mrs. Macauley of San Mateo.

JACOBS WINS AT WIMBLEDON, PALFREY LOSES

British Cup Stars
Lose in Doubles Play

By Charles A. Smith

International News Service Sports Writer
WIMBLEDON, Eng., July 3 (INS).—Helen Jacobs of the U.S.A., Dorothy Round of Great Britain, Mme. Simone Mathieu of France and Joan Hartigan of Australia today fought their way into the semi-final round of the women's singles in the all-England tennis championship.

Helen eliminated Fraulein C. Aussem, Germany's No. 1, 6-0, 6-2.

Dorothy defeated Mlle. Lolette, Swiss No. 1, 6-4, 6-2.

Mme. Mathieu trimmed Sarah Palfrey of Boston 6-3, 3-6, 6-2.

Joan stopped Peggy Scriven of England, 3-6, 6-3, 6-1.

A SURPRISE

This last victory was the most surprising of the tournament. The Australian girl had never appeared at Wimbledon before, and it was believed she would fall an easy victim to one of the well-known stars.

She will meet Miss Jacobs in the semi-finals, and Mme. Mathieu will clash with Miss Round.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BECKMAN

Dear Mrs. Beekman,
I have been corresponding with a young man in a distant city for a year or more. I received a present recently from him. He didn't want me to accept it from him, but from his mother. She lives abroad and it was sent to him from her to give to his girlfriend. I've never met his mother. What acknowledgement should I make? J.

First, write the young man a letter of thanks for his sending you the present, chatting about your appreciation both of his kindness and of his mother's generous thought, and telling of your enthusiasm for the gift. Enclosed in his letter will be your letter of thanks to his mother, which you will ask him to be good enough to forward to her. Don't seal this letter to his mother, but do affix the postage on it.

PATRIOTIC AIRS ACCLAIM 4TH OF JULY

CITY COMPLETES TEMPLAR CONCLAVE DECORATIONS

North Beach In Fete Mood For Meeting

North Beach will give a colorful welcome to visiting Knights Templars on their arrival here this weekend for their grand encampment, according to Joseph A. Pasqualetti, chairman of the committee in charge of street decorations for San Francisco's Latin quarter.

All of the main thoroughfares are to be decorated, according to Pasqualetti. This will include Columbus avenue from Broadway to the Golden Gate Ferries, Broadway from Montgomery to Stockton, Stockton from Broadway to Union street, Grant avenue from Columbus avenue to Filbert street and through Fisherman's Wharf.

The decorations are planned so that visitors arriving by automobile from the north coast by way of the Golden Gate ferries will be greeted by templar colors throughout the North Beach district. Many of the merchants will also join in the decorative display by adorning their shops and windows.

ITALIAN FESTIVAL

One of the big events of the Conclave week will be an Italian festival to be staged Tuesday afternoon at Fisherman's Wharf. This will include Neapolitan street singing and dancing, swimming and diving events. Frank Martinelli is chairman of the arrangements for this affair.

The extent of San Francisco's hospitality arrangements for visiting Knights Templars attending the conclave will be evidenced tomorrow in an exhibit of the prizes to be seen in the lobbies of the St. Francis and Palace hotels. These prizes will be awarded to the drill teams taking part in the competitions Tuesday and Wednesday of the next week.

There will be prizes for each of the thirty-three members of the four winning teams. In addition to this the local committee is awarding a special team prize for each of the four teams.

MANY PRIZES

A handsome electric chime clock will go to each of the thirty-three members of the first team, to those of the second and third teams the committee will award traveling bags, engraved game carving sets are to be the prizes of the members of the fourth team.

"We are proud of the arrangements we have been able to effect to suitably reward the teams taking part in these competitions," said Bernhard, chairman of the committee on drill competitions. "The prizes offered will give them something to long remember their visit to this conclave."

The first of the drill competitions will be held Tuesday afternoon of next week in the Exposition Auditorium when California puts on its own show. None but teams of this state will take part in the competitions on this day. The out-of-state teams will be matched against each other on the following day in the same place. The drill competitions will be open to the public.

FINAL REHEARSALS HELD

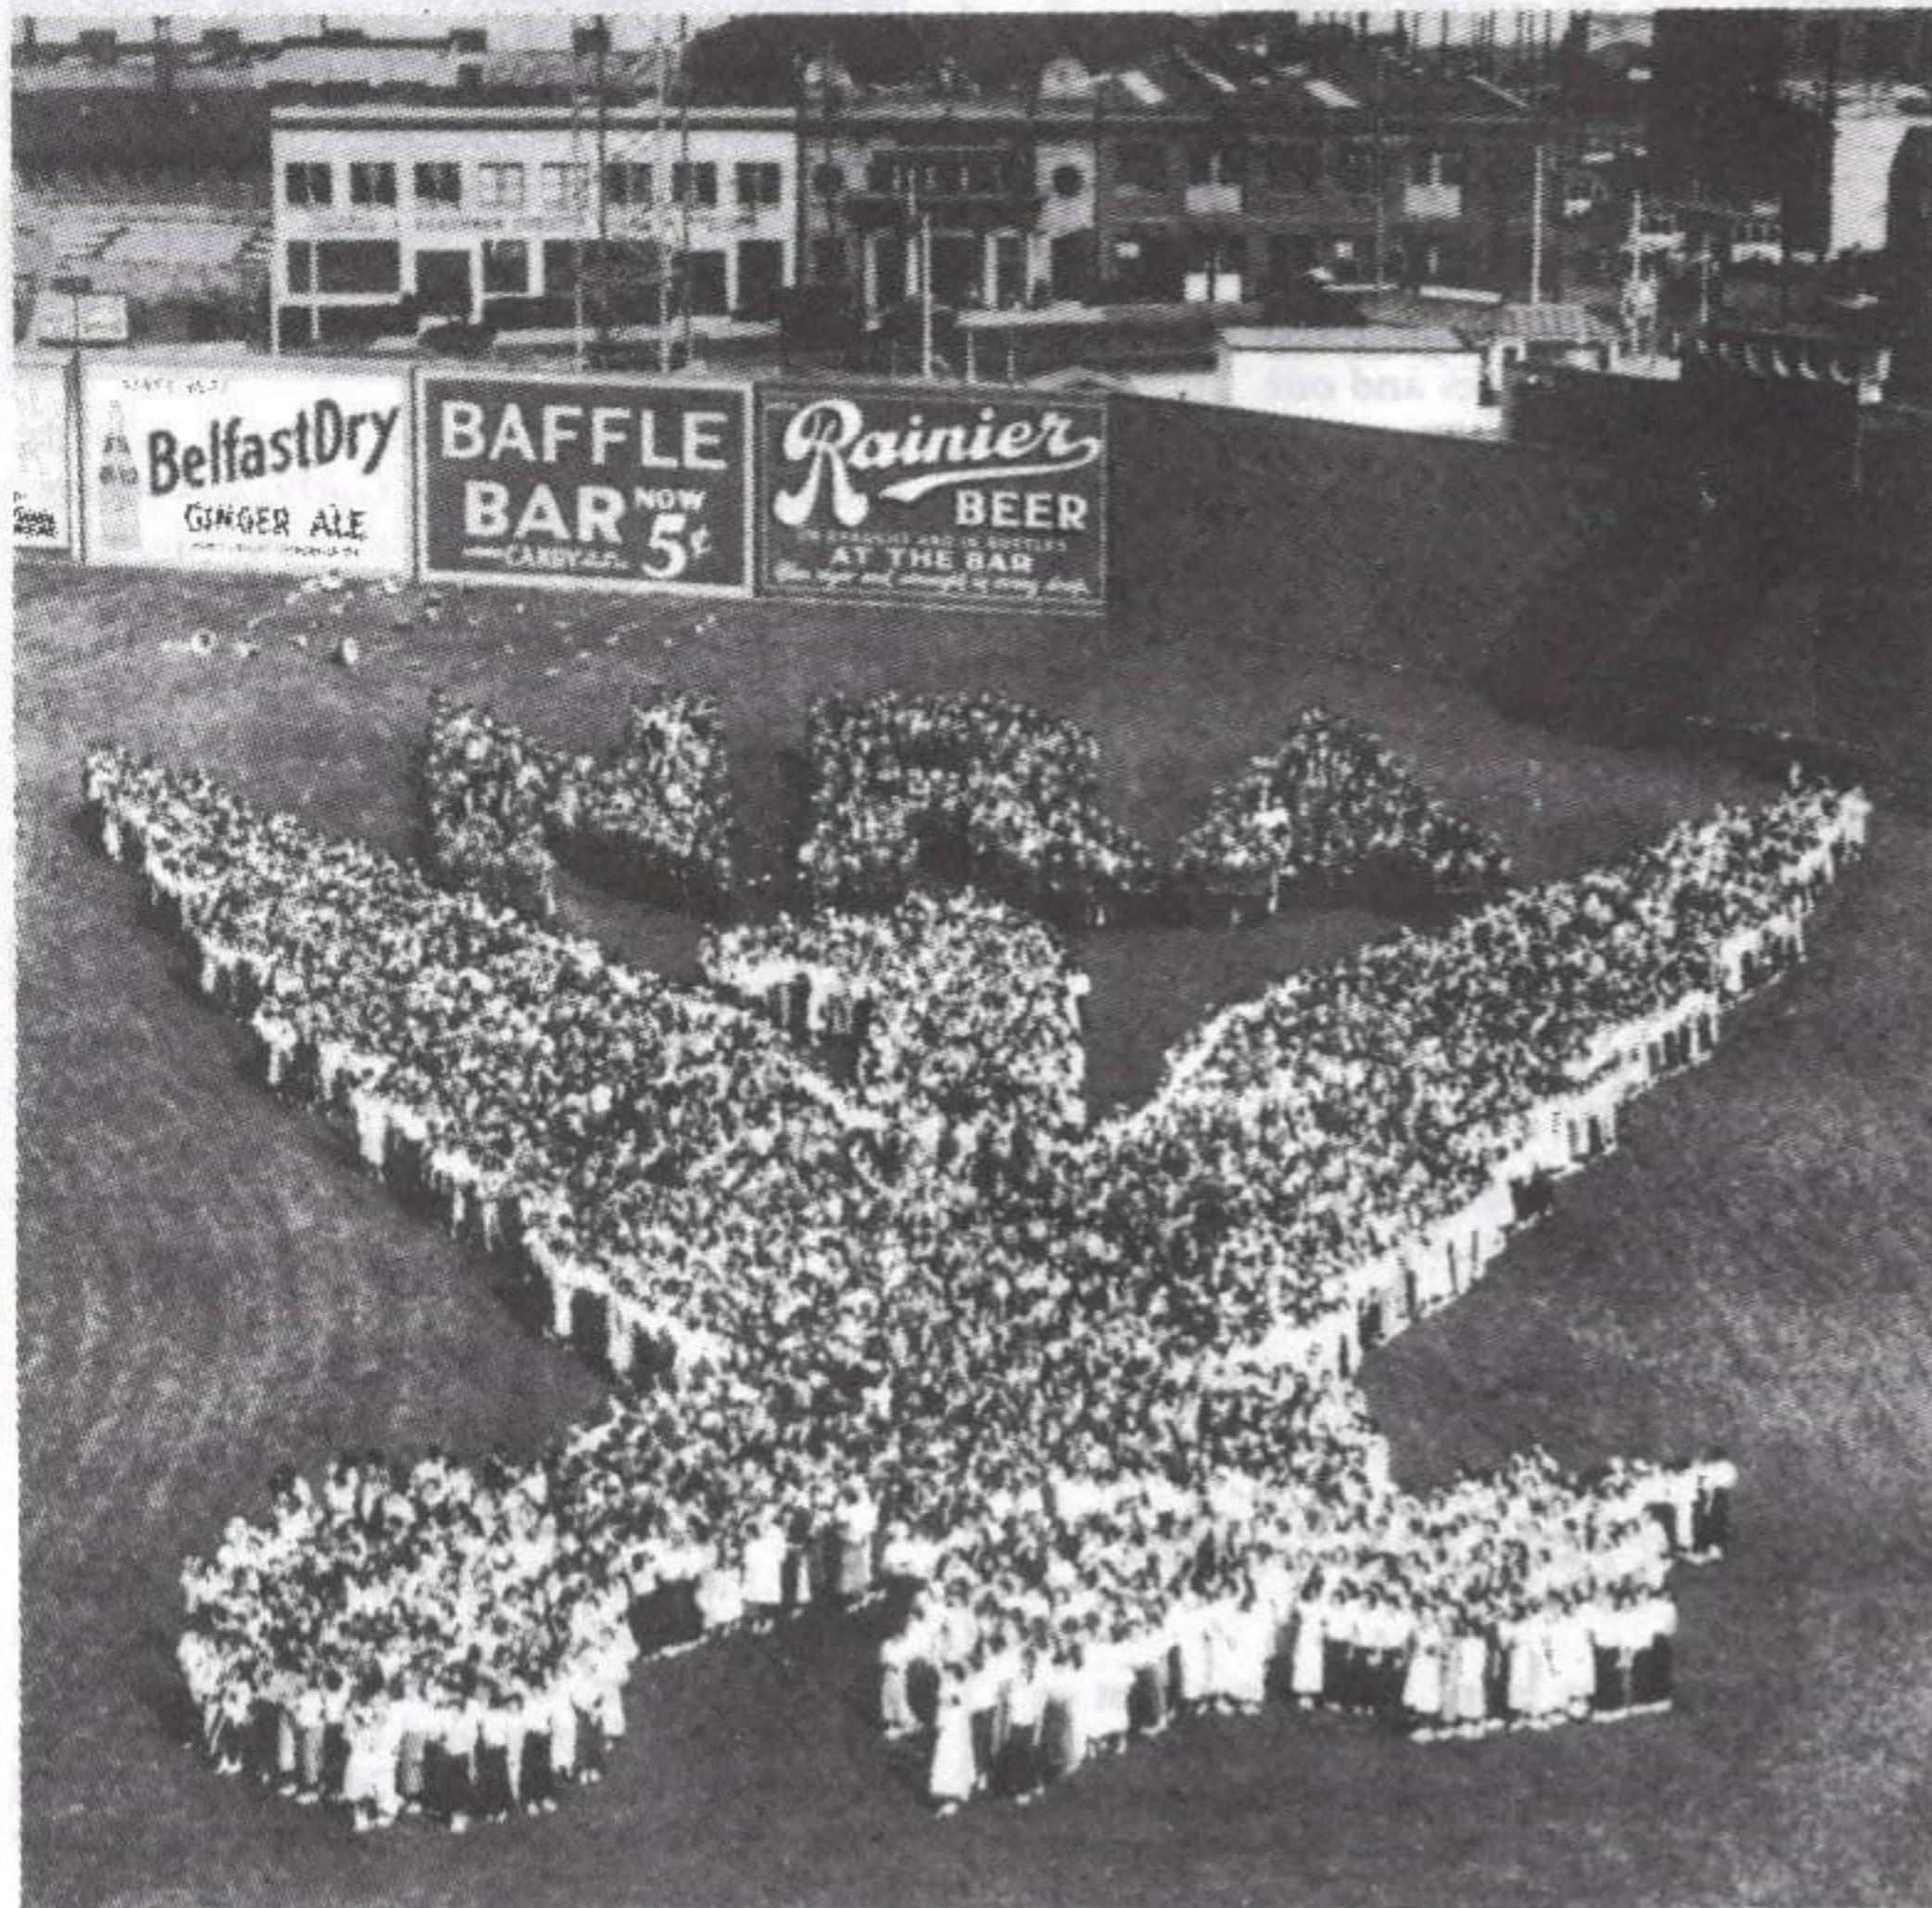

Final arrangements are being held by the cast of 200 which is to present the pageant, "When Knighthood Was in Flower" in the War Memorial Opera House Wednesday and Thursday nights in honor of the visiting Knights Templars.

The Squire and Compass Players, with Jesse Whited as general manager, will present the dramatic production.

The production will be on an elaborate scale.

2 Killed in Brawl

HARRISON, Idaho, July 4 (AP).—Two men were dead and a third, wounded, was under arrest as a result of someone shooting at a Fourth of July eve drinking party here.

Rallying for NRA, 8,000 children form a giant eagle in a San Francisco ball-park.

COLORFUL PAGEANTRY MARKS FOURTH IN S.F.

San Francisco's "real patriots"—the stay at homes—today are celebrating the Fourth of July in the quiet and patriotic manner that has characterized this city's Independence Days for generations.

While thousands have left the city for the interior towns, the mountains and the beach resorts, other thousands, paradoxically, have come to the metropolis to observe the day without noise and confusion.

The migration from San Francisco began Saturday and continued over Sunday.

S.F. MAN DIES IN ROCK SLIDE

Crushed in a rock slide while climbing the precipitous slopes of Mt. Shasta, Sydney Schlesinger, 49, San Francisco attorney and prominent in bay region hiking clubs was dead today.

Schlesinger, in company with about eighteen hikers, was leading the procession by about 500 feet when a mass of rock and debris hurtled down the mountain side, plunging him to his doom.

The party dug his body from the rocks, but he lived only ten minutes, word telephoned here to his foster brother, Gerald S. Mack, 1990 Green street, said.

Leaving his home in Larkspur Friday, Schlesinger joined the group of hikers at Mt. Shasta City yesterday for the ascent. He was prominent in amateur theatricals.

In the party was Henry Manhelm Jr. of San Anselmo, a stock and bond broker. He gave only a few details when telephoning an account of the mishap to his brother, George, in San Anselmo.

Halstead & Company was scheduled to make funeral arrangements.

Man Injured in Mystery Accident

Falling from an automobile to Bayshore highway, Joseph Bruno, 28, East Palo Alto, was brought to Community Hospital in San Mateo for the second time within four months for treatment following peculiar mishaps.

Bruno was treated at the hospital four months ago for cuts suffered when his head was thrust through a windshield.

Monday and yesterday. Highways leading out of the city and ferry boats have been crowded with holiday "emigrants" for several days.

Thousands will return to the city tonight and tomorrow, but many other thousands will "make a week of it" and not return till Monday.

CITY CELEBRATES

San Francisco's celebration, under the auspices of the citizens' committee, of which A. J. Cloud, chief deputy superintendent of schools, is chairman, officially begins at 1:30 this afternoon with horse racing in the Golden Gate Park stadium.

At the same time boat races will be featured at Lake Merced with some of the coast's best oarsmen participating.

The principal event of the day will be staged in Exposition Auditorium starting at 7:30 this evening.

Mayor Angelo J. Rossi will be the principal speaker. Governor Frank F. Merriam, scheduled to make an address, was forced to cancel his engagement because of the necessity of his remaining in Sacramento to give personal attention to developments in the waterfront strike situation.

PATRIOTIC TABLEAUX

The literary program will be followed by a series of tableaux depicting historical events in the life of the nation.

The tableaux, evolved and directed by Margaret Krsak as her contribution to the city's entertainment, will be followed by a grand ball, open to the public.

Sea Captain Missing Officials Concerned

Morris Zeager, retired ship's captain and member of the Seaman's Union, was reported missing yesterday after union officials became concerned when he failed to appear for elections in which he was a candidate for union treasurer. Police say he was last seen Sunday, July 1.

The Union, now itself caught up in the current troubles on the Embarcadero, chose Oliver Kehoe as Treasurer in Zeager's absence since union rules forbid a local from electing any candidate to office who is not present at the election meeting. According to Matt Jorgensen, 39, a first-class merchant seaman, Zeager was the only candidate and was the clear choice of local president Frank Schuler.

'LOVE MARKET' LINKS DENVER PROMINENTS

DENVER, July 3, (INS).—Denver's midsummer "love market" scandal—a story that has already resulted in filing of criminal charges against eight men and one woman following the discovery of a 15-year old runaway school girl in an asserted disorderly house—spread today to include the names of more prominent men and several married women.

The girl, whose disappearance and discovery two weeks later in the home of Mrs. Vera ("Brownie") Brinkerhoff, buxom 35 year old divorcee, precipitated the scandal, revealed to District Attorney Earl O. Wettengel the names of men she said had visited her while she was an inmate of the "love market."

CHARGES BROUGHT

As a result, charges were filed against Mrs. Brinkerhoff; Simon A. ("Sherlock") Holmes of Detroit, a traveling salesman; Don W. Mayne, a Public Service Company clerk; Carl Meyer, Denver mortician; George Simon Jr., Denver manufacturer; John Richardson, a garage owner; Charles Manship, a businessman; John Wells, 18 year old university student, and Tommy Romolo, part owner of a Noth Denver night club.

Arrest of Holmes in Los Angeles, led to strife between the district attorney's office and that of Undersheriff J. J. Vick Roy. Wettengel holds warrant for Holmes, but has no funds with which to send a deputy to return him. Vick Roy has the funds, but no warrant.

Wettengel charged Vick Roy with attempting to block the investigation.

Account books found in Mrs. Brinkerhoff's house when it was raided assertedly contained the names of many Denver men prominent in the business and political life of the city. Two members of the city council were said to be on the list.

MARRIED WOMEN LISTED

Investigators for the district attorney's office declared that at least eight married women were on the list.

POLICE SEEK MYSTERY KILLER

Police have not yet broken the case of the murder of Mr. Scott Hayes, 68, of 31 Scenic Way, chairman of the board of the Hayes Emporium, in the early morning of July 3. The family chauffeur, Roland Jones, who resides in a room in the Hayes mansion, said:

"I just saw the light on in the study when I came in after parking the car. I was surprised that Mr. Hayes was still up at four o'clock, since he wanted me to take him out to the ranch at seven. I stopped by to see if he would be needing me and found him just lying there."

Jones would not describe the scene, he said, because he wanted to forget it as soon as possible.

"Oh, he was dead all right. It was horrible. Blood everywhere. All I could do was call the cops."

According to police sources, Mr. Howard Black, an operative of the Continental Detective Agency of San Francisco and other cities, was also found shot to death in a car parked in the driveway of the home. They reported that Black had been retained to protect the late Mr. Hayes by the Emporium's lawyer, T. C. Van Ness, Jr. Mr. Van Ness could not be reached for an interview. The Continental Detective Agency refused to comment on the murders, but confirmed that Mr. Black was working on the case at the time of his death.

The police were unwilling to discuss the case, but said they were making a thorough search for physical evidence at the scene of the crime. The were unable to provide a description of suspects or any clue as to possible motives for the horrible slayings.

MEDIATION BANNED BY WORKERS

SACRAMENTO, July 3 (AP).—Acting Governor Merriam served notice on San Francisco dock strikers today that they must cease interfering with operations of the Belt Line Railroad, which is a part of the state's property in the bay city.

The governor issued this notice through P. W. Meherin, president of the Board of Harbor Commissioners, after the latter informed him by telephone that strikers were preventing movement of perishable goods in box cars consigned to the Matson Line docks.

"I told him (Meherin) to make another effort to handle freight," the governor said. "I also told Meherin to say to the strikers that neither the governor nor the state desires to take part in the trouble, but that the strikers must not interfere with the state's business."

The governor said he was waiting for the strikers' reply through Meherin before deciding what action he may take.

Train crews on the State Belt Line Railroad, fearing for their lives in the face of threats by strikers, flatly refused to move an engine from the roundhouse, while new outbreaks flared on the waterfront after a day of bloody rioting.

A. R. Pidgeon, superintendent of the state line, addressed a new plea to Governor Frank F. Merriam, through the Harbor Commission, for the state to furnish protection to the trainmen, on the heels of an announcement by the governor of a planned program to call out the National Guard if necessary.

Meherin said he would not ask the governor to call out the troops, since it was not a question of protecting the trainmen's lives while on the waterfront, but after they went home.

St. Helena Vintage Festival to be Revived

One of California's most colorful pageants—the annual St. Helena Vintage Festival—will be revived this year after a "holiday" of thirteen years.

The festival was abandoned thirteen years ago because the juice of the grape—mout of the festival—had become outlawed. But this year, with wine again respectable and legal—the festival will be put on with renewed vim and energy, the St. Helena Festival announces.

Arthur H. Kenny, who recently directed the successful San Juan Bautista celebration, will direct the vintage play. The festival opens September 1 and ends two days later.

OFFICER SHOT IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, July 4 (AP).—The shooting of a policeman early today gave rise to reports that George ("Baby Face") Nelson, John Dillinger's lieutenant, was on a rampage, but authorities gave no credence to them.

The ruthlessness of the attack in which Detective William Donovan was wounded was characteristic of that employed by Dillinger mobsters, but their descriptions failed to tally.

Donovan was wounded in the arm when with another detective he sought to question three men who had entered a taxicab in the loop. On of the trio shot the officer, another shot and missed, and the third pressed his revolver into the driver's back, ordering him to drive on.

CURIE FUNERAL TO BE SIMPLE

SALLANCHES, France, July 4 (AP).—A simple funeral was planned today for Mme. Marie Curie, 64, who died a martyr to the cause of science.

The co-discoverer of radium, physicians said, had accumulated radium rays in her system during her experiments and these contributed directly to the illness which ended in her death.

Shortly before she died, Mme. Curie directed that her funeral be a simple one, in keeping with the life she led, although honors had poured in upon her, including two nobel prizes.

She will be buried beside her husband, Pierre Curie, who died in 1906 when struck by a truck. His death came shortly after the discovery of radium, invaluable in treatment of cancer, had been announced.

Scott Albert Sidney Hayes Dead at 68

Scott Albert Sidney Hayes died July 3, 1934 at Baker Beach Mansion, his home in San Francisco. Hayes came to the United States from Scotland in 1882 at the age of sixteen. After working in the weaving industry in New York for several years he made his way to San Francisco by 1890. He immediately set out to realize his dream of a great store devoted to fashion.

Hayes drew heavily on his earliest experiences in the Scottish linen manufacturing center of Paisley, home of such major firms in the thread industry as J. & P. Coats and Clark & Company. Gradually his little shop on Sutter street grew into a successful enterprise, but it was destroyed in the 1906 fire. He was one of the first merchants to commit himself to a complete rebuilding and at his new Market street location soon rose a landmark to all San Franciscans, the Hayes Emporium.

In 1931, Hayes relinquished the reins of the company to his only son and became chairman of the board. He devoted the past several years to his extensive stable of horses on his 800 acre ranch in San Mateo, named for his birthplace, Paisley.

Scott A.S. Hayes was a member of the Maltese Club and the Caledonian Society. He was a past president of the Dry Goods Association.

Hayes is survived by his son Wilhem Egbert Hayes, the current president of The Hayes Emporium who resides on Russian Hill at 1023 Broadway.

Funeral services will be held Thursday at All Saints Episcopal Church, beginning at 11 a.m. Interment will be in a private ceremony at the family crypt which is the resting place of his beloved wife, Mrs. Wilhemina Marie Schmidt Hayes, who died in the great influenza epidemic of 1919.

'34 GIRL HELD BETTER THAN SISTER OF YORE

CLEVELAND, July 3 (INS).—The modern girl is just as good or even better than her predecessor!

That is the opinion of Sister Laurentine, director of nurses in St. Francis Hospital, Pittsburgh, expressed here recently at the convention of the Catholic Hospital Association of the United States and Canada.

And Sister Laurentine ought to know, for she had direct supervision over more than 800 girls graduated from the nurses' training school at St. Francis' Hospital for the last ten years.

"Modern girls make excellent trained nurses," said the nun. "They are just as kind and sympathetic and just as competent to do all the things that a nurse must do as any girl in past generations."

Sister Laurentine said that she has the chance to observe the girls in the flapper stage, for "they come to us right out of high school, generally about 18 years of age."

"There is no reason to believe all the things that are said about the modern girl," she said. "Some of them may have the vices they are said to have, but they are no worse and more often better than the girls of other generations."

Sinister Form Stirs Plea For Police

COMPTON, July 3, (AP).—Strange sounds in the middle of the night aroused Herman Lehrboss.

In the breakfast room the moonlight outlined a sinister crouching form, hat tilted back. Lehrboss and his wife ran to a neighbor's home and telephoned police.

Officer Wayne Wright hotfooted it to the scene.

"I've got you covered," he warned, "don't move."

He snapped on his flashlight. Draped on a chair were a hat and sweater Lehrboss had left there the evening before.

Local Talent Takes Manhattan

Jackson de Young Lights the Marquees

Tin Pan Alley is that part of gay Broadway that furnishes the world with song and dance, where Clarence Williams has operated his "song and dance factory" in the Gayety Building, 1547 Broadway, for 12 years, the largest Negro publishing house of the nation. It was there at the Willow Club, in the basement of this remarkable establishment, where the San Francisco man of the sax, Jackson de Young completed a two week gig that's put his already rising career on a transcontinental aeroplane to success.

It is the rumour of Harlem that Mr. Williams wants to add one more talent to his assembly line where he manufactures most fascinating music, tuneful melody, harmonious rhapsody, inveigling syncopation, raggedy scales, heart-beat blues, blasting jingles, red hot jazz supreme.

"The Marquis" returns tonight from New York, where he appeared with Cab Calloway, to jump immediately into cutting the wax for Salsbury Studios and playing at The Fisherman.

IN THE SOCIAL WHIRL

By Phoebe Newhart

The Generations at Crossroads

MR. AND MRS. JOHN P. COGHLAN, who have one of the attractive houses on the Stanford campus while the owner is away on vacation, entertain there every Sunday with informal luncheons and dinners under the trees.

Mrs. Coghlan is planning a luncheon early in July for her mother, Mrs. Nevada Kearny of Hollister, one of the beloved figures of that section of California which pioneers found fair and which their descendants love with a fierce chauvinistic affection.

Mrs. Kearny was born on the California-Nevada State Line when her parents were en route to the Land of Promise in a covered wagon. Hence the name, "Nevada."

On that State Line spot now stands one of the luxurious gambling clubs frequented by Reno divorcees and Tahoe vacationists, where Jack Dempsey and his little bride, Hannah Williams Dempsey, spent a few days of their honeymoon, and where Elliott Roosevelt whiled away the time "establishing residence" for a certain purpose.

Thus within a generation, or at least in the span of one lifetime, does a wilderness take on the urbanities of the most effete of civilizations. For a gambling resort is the topmost bubble on the froth called luxurious living.

Lady! Lady! Please remember that the glittering polish is only a part of nail care. Shine on or shine off, ragged cuticle looks just as terrible.

Two rules must be kept faithfully; attention to the cuticle and scrupulous cleanliness of the nail caves, under which germs take lodgings. There's a new whitening agent for eaves. It is painted on the outer surface. It is to be hoped that when it is applied the inner surface will not be neglected.

Keep cuticle soft with warm olive oil or a cuticle cream. Detach it gently from the nail. If hangnails must be removed, be careful not to cause a wound, since any abrasion invites infection.

FIJI LAVALAND REVEALS ANCIENT CULT

RARE MYSTIC RACE OF 5000 YEARS AGO

SUVA, Fiji Islands, July 5 (INS).—At the gateway of the Goro Sea stands the Yasawa group of volcanic islands, the westernmost outpost of the Fiji Islands and on the lava-land promontory of the largest of the group is artistically carved an heroic sized figure of a woman kissing her child—the work of Chinese seafarers in the dawn of recorded history.

This startling discovery made by Arthur Vogan, famed archeologist of Sydney University, Australia, followed closely on the heels of a discovery yesterday of a cathedral-like cavern on the same island, on the walls of which were Chinese inscriptions dating back to 2600 B.C. According to Dr. A.J. Fox, expert in Oriental languages, the script was of the Shan dynasty of ancient China, that reigned in dim ages antedating even the Biblical recording of the flood.

PHOTOS, CASTS MADE

No excavations have been attempted as yet. Only photographs and casts have been made of the extraordinary findings. Dr. Fox has deciphered one script word, "hsia," to mean "five." This numeral, Dr. Fox thinks, refers to the number of Chinese seafarers who were wrecked on the shores of the Fiji Islands and who may have been forerunners of the Polynesian people. When the Fiji Islands were discovered by Tasman in 1643, the natives were wild savages, hunting each other down, and eating their enemies.

Many of the mystic carvings on the walls have not yet been deciphered. The figure of the woman was carved on the lava rocks outside the great cave on a rocky point jutting into the sea. The nearly 5000 year old figure, in the opinion of Vogan and Dr. Fox, shows every evidence of extraordinary skill.

SHIPWRECK TOLD

The discoverers are fairly certain that the strange writings on the cavern walls tell the story of a shipwreck and also that they indicate the burial in the cavern of great value.

The photographs and casts taken by Vogan will be sent to the University of Sydney, from which point archeological students throughout the world may obtain data expected to be of incalculable value toward solving the mystery of the origin of the Polynesian people and the migrations of Oriental races to mid-Pacific islands in the dawn of human history.

SHERIFF KILLS SELF AT SAN LUIS OBISPO

SAN LUIS OBISPO, July 4 (INS).—Though circumstances pointed to suicide, District Attorney A.H. Brazil today was making an intensive probe of the death last night of Sheriff Jess P. Lowery of San Luis Obispo County.

Lowery was found shot to death in his home here, his revolver beside him. He was shot through the head. He was partly clothed.

Mrs. Irene Lowery, who filed suit for divorce six weeks ago in Oakland and came back to live with Lowery a few days ago, found the body. She was in a hysterical condition under a physician's care today and could give no details of events preceding the shooting.

In her sensational divorce suit, Mrs. Lowery charged that the sheriff was "always drunk" and on several occasions had handcuffed her to a chair and fired shots at her.

LAW REVISION URGED TO CURB DOPE TRAFFIC

Complete revision of the federal and California narcotics laws is necessary to combat the increasing influx of dope from the Orient, United States Commissioner Ernest E. Williams stated today.

Commissioner Williams said that increased appropriations were needed, both by the state and federal agencies, "to combat the growing evil on the Pacific Coast," especially in the San Francisco Bay region.

"New laws and new appropriations are needed," Commissioner Williams asserted. "The present laws are so far behind the times—and so antiquated—they are ridiculous."

"A dope peddler is worse than a murderer or a kidnapper, for an addict dies an agonizing, slow death. The narcotics peddler, in my estimation, is one of the greatest problems in the suppression of crime today."

"He is ruthless, he solicits new 'victims' and these victims steal, murder, kidnap, rob or commit other crimes to pay for their needs."

The federal official, who has studied the narcotics traffic from all angles for years, and has spoken before civic clubs for stricter laws and more appropriations, paid tribute to the work of the San Francisco federal narcotic bureau and the state narcotic bureau for their work under reduced appropriations.

Three Dead After Robbery, Car Chase

A wild Fourth of July auto chase through San Francisco and the Peninsula ended with the discovery by the police of the bodies of two men believed to be two of the four men who participated in the daring noon robbery of Lindeman's Jewelry Store. As of late Wednesday night neither had been identified. Also found dead was Sam Thacker, 20, of San Francisco, shot once through the chest at close range.

The badly burned body of one of the men was located in the overturned Ford, just off Skyline Boulevard, one mile north of Sneath Road East near San Bruno. Police were hampered in their efforts to investigate by a brush fire ignited when the vehicle used by the robbers crashed in flames. Only after the conflagration had been extinguished did police search for a second man known to have been in the car, leading to the grim discovery of the two other bodies east of the crash.

Police hypothesize that Thacker, apparently a camper, may have scuffled with the robber before he was shot. The corpse of the presumed robber was located at the bottom of a steep ravine. Neither the jewels nor the gun used to shoot Thacker was discovered at the scene, authorities say.

8 CHILDREN HURT IN S.F. 4th FETE

Celebrating the Fourth of July in the good old firecracker way brought painful burns to eight San Francisco children before noon yesterday.

Physicians at the various emergency hospitals were kept busy treating ugly burns on small hands almost from the time the fireworks stands opened in the morning.

Children suffering from powder burns were:

Robert Patterson, 10, 2319 Fourth-Seventh avenue, first and second degree burns of the fingers; James McCaffrey, 14, 330 Precita avenue, finger burns; Maynard Caswell, 13, 1257 Ellis street, first degree burns of the fingers; John Hagopian, 13, 1502 Masonic avenue, hand burns; Patricia Jachone, 9, 2548 Twenty-fifth avenue, burns and lacerations of the hand.

John Margelson, 10, 95 Ortega street, first and second degree finger burns; Dallas Bacon, 12, 1146 Taylor street, contusions and lacerations of the lip, and George Dougherty, 2435 Eighteenth avenue, first degree burns of the fingers.

First firecracker injury in the bay region yesterday was received by June Stanford, 16 year old El Cerrito High School girl, when a giant firecracker exploded at her feet at Seventh and Webster streets, Oakland.

The girl, who lives at 73 Campbell street, was taken to the Alameda County Emergency Hospital, where she was treated for burns about the legs and ankles.

An Oakland policeman was painfully injured because brother officers played carelessly with firecrackers.

Policemen were in the squad room at headquarters after receiving instructions to discourage the use of firecrackers by Oakland's boys and girls of all ages.

One of the more playful of the policemen tossed a lighted giant cracker among the group. The cracker exploded just as it hit Policeman Allen H. Gladding, 52, of 4000 Laurel street.

Gladding was treated at the Alameda County Emergency Hospital for a lacerated right eye and ear. His hearing was temporarily impaired.

PRES. FISHES FOR 'BIG UNS'

ABOARD THE U.S. GILMER ACCOMPANYING PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, July 4 (INS).—President Roosevelt celebrated a glorious Fourth today by fishing in historic waters. He cast his line off Long Island, one of the Bahamas. Not long before, in the cruiser Houston, which is taking him to Hawaii on a vacation trip, he passed San Salvador, where Columbus discovered America.

The President at his fishing wore oil skins to protect himself from frequent showers.

He was amused by such sporting events as obstacles, potato and three-legged races which the sailors put on for his benefit. He awarded the prizes.

The Houston was gaily decorated from stem to stern with bright flags. The signal guns near the bridge boomed out a salute to the nation's birthday while officers and crew stood at attention.

There has been considerable sea-sickness on board the Gilmer, which was not confined to the reporters, as the dogged little destroyer kept the pace set by the Houston through heavy seas.

However, all was going smoothly on the larger ship. The President heard reports over the radio on the situation in Germany and on the longshoreman's strike situation on the West Coast, a situation he will pass through on his return if it is not settled by that time.

He put in some time at work even today, although he appears to be only taking it easy.

NEW VIOLENCE IN DOCK WAR

Violent rioting in the waterfront sector yesterday sent eight men to the hospital for treatment and shot wounds and eleven others for treatment for beating or tear gassing.

Five of those shot, two of the injured and one other man were arrested on charges of inciting to riot, resisting an officer or disturbing the peace.

Those arrested are:

Leslie Steinhart, William Wilson, Albert Simmons, Nick Nicholas, Jerry Hart, Steve Hamrock, Sever Christensen and William Higgins.

Christensen, 11, a striking seaman, was arrested on charges of disturbing the peace. Higgins and Hamrock were charged with resisting an officer. Hamrock, Steinhart, Wilson, Simmons, Nicholas and Hart were charged with inciting to riot.

HIT BY SNIPER

Two of the men shot today were reported to have been hit by bullets fired from a sniper's gun on Rincon Hill. They are James O'Reilly and John Scullion.

The tear gas and beating victims were injured in fierce fighting between police and mobs along the waterfront and in the warehouse district.

Two trucks were overturned by mobs, one at Third and Brannan streets, and one in front of 650 Eighth street.

GAS IMPRACTICABLE

Advised of threats of strikers and sympathizers to use nausea gas in their activities, Police Chief William J. Quinn declared that use of the gas would be ineffective.

Chief Quinn said. "The police department is equipped with this gas also, but it is useless except in confined areas and closed buildings. It is effective only when used in buildings and other structures which are poorly ventilated."

Chief Quinn, who took personal charge of waterfront activities, reported that he had 700 men in the strike zone. Before the men went on duty they were ordered to carry their heavy sticks, ordinarily used only for parades and "dire emergencies."

Yesterday police drove back strikers and sympathizers to a point west of Third street, warning them to remain out of the work zone. At Folsom street and the Embarcadero police turned back the drivers of all automobiles who could not furnish sufficient reason for visiting the waterfront.

BLAME RADICALS

Communist activity was blamed for some of the violence by Lee J. Holman, president of the San Francisco and Bay District Longshoremen's Association. He made his accusation in a telegram to Governor Frank F. Merriam, in which he asked protection for longshoremen willing to work.

Seen and Heard in San Francisco's Hotel Lobbies

JOHN M. ALLEN, of Sydney Australia guest of the Palace Hotel, predicts that Australian wine, "almost the equal of California wines," will be one of the major industries of the Antipodes in ten or fifteen years.

Allen, agent for the Seattle firm of Skinner & Eddy, is on his way north to Seattle, where one of the first shipments of the wines from the country down under will arrive soon.

"Australian wines have the same high quality as the famed wines of California," he said. "Recent improvements in the vintner's art there will make the wines of Australia famous the world over."

The wine districts of the commonwealth are similar to those of California both for climate and soil elements, he said.

SPECTATORS GASSED AT DOUBLE EXECUTION

SF GRIPPED IN STRIKE: AGAIN ARMED CAMP

By ASHLEY TURNER
The pages of history were turned back fifty years or more in San Francisco today. Once again San Francisco was an armed camp.
Instead of bewhiskered, red shirted vigilantes patrolling the streets armed with single action Colts, shotguns and squirrel rifles, smooth faced, olive drab youths, high powered rifles on their young shoulders, paced up and down the waterfront.
Throughout the night the California National Guard patrolled the waterfront. Sentries walked their posts the night through.
Lights flared here and there. shrill whistles sounded as officers called their men, gave orders and kept their watch.
The soldiers paced the waterfront throughout the night actuated by the same motives that prompted the vigilantes of old to patrol the streets of San Francisco.
Moved into the battle zone after a day of savage rioting, terror and bloodshed such as California has not known in years, following a call by Governor Merriam, the guard troops restored the first twenty-four hours' chaos to order.
Military rule prevailed on the Embarcadero, rocked by rioting which left a bloody record of two dead, twenty-seven shot and forty-three injured by clubs, bricks and tear gas, while guardsmen served notice that they are prepared to preserve order with bayonets and bullets.
Early they warned against hand-to-hand fighting.
National Guard officers, many of them veterans of overseas service, marshalled their command in imposing units in front of the piers while eight machine gun companies mounted their lethal weapons at dock entrances and expert riflemen—the finest trained shots—were stationed behind barricades on pier shed tops.
At 7 A.M., when the guard officially took over the situation from the police, machine guns were set up in the Embarcadero and at

HOLLYWOOD 4 SEIZED IN DOPE RAID

LOS ANGELES, July 5 (INS).—With four secret arrests early today, federal narcotics agents announced they had broken up a gigantic dope smuggling ring that operated in Hollywood and employed a novel numbering system to shield its wealthy and exclusive patrons.
Those who were taken into custody in a swift succession of before-dawn raids were:
Pete Benson 42, who federal agents declared, was the driver of the automobile in which Lillian Gordon, Broadway "butterfly," was strangled to death in New York in 1931.
Max Weber, 40, who the federal men claimed was the "brains" of the operation.
Raymond Fung, 31, a Chinese actor, and John Kully, 38, who, it was said, might later be released.
All of those arrested were booked secretly until narcotics agents were able to give information said to have been gained from the arrested men to federal authorities. Further arrests were expected in New York, the agents said.
Harry Smith, head of the United States narcotic agents on the Pacific Coast, came here personally to conduct the raids. He said an increasing flood of narcotics was finding its way into Hollywood and that two months had been spent in tracing down information which led to today's arrests.

2 CLASP HANDS, DIE IN PRISON GAS CHAMBER

ARIZONA STATE PENITENTIARY, FLORENCE, Ariz., July 5 (INS).—In the first double lethal gas execution in the history of criminology, Manuel Hernandez, 17, and his brother Fred, 19, died within the space of a minute here today in expiation for the murder and the $35 robbery of Charles Washburn, 65 year old California prospector.
The Mexican youths were executed just as the sun rose over the bleak Arizona desert. A last-minute confessional by Manuel, in which he shouldered the blame for the crime, failed to save his brother.
The execution marked the first time that the Arizona lethal gas chamber, substituted at the last election for the gallows, had been put to use.
TOUCH HANDS
Despite the straps that bound their arms and chest to a double wooden chair, the boys managed to stretch until their fingers touched as they faced death together.
The sack of fifteen cyanide pellets was dropped into the bucket of sulphuric acid at 5:09 a.m. (P. S. T.). Although death seemed to the witnesses to come swiftly, Manuel was not declared dead until 5:11 a.m. and Fred, who struggled violently at 5:13 a.m.
They had entered the death chamber at exactly 5:00 o'clock, both appearing resigned to their fate.
After they were seated, the Rev. Father Patrick Murphy knelt before them and led a prayer in their native Mexican tongue.
Manuel was strapped first. He asked not to be blindfolded, and talked incessantly with Fred, who broke down and cried to have his eyes covered. Blindfolds were placed over the eyes of both youths.
By the time the cyanide pellets were released, the two managed to be holding hands. Manuel died with his head slumped forward on his chest, but Fred's curly head was thrown back on the chair.
FUMES ESCAPE
There was momentary panic in the small witness chamber where 43 spectators watched the execution through glass windows when the odor of cyanide drifted out from the death chamber.
"Open those doors—it's unsafe in here—get out!" cried out a voice, and the steel doors leading to the stairway were opened and more than half the spectators fell or were pushed down the stairs.
Only a few newspapermen remained behind, standing close to open windows.
On the front prison lawn, 500 yards from the death chamber, the Hernandez family—consisting of mother, brothers, and sisters, an uncle and cousins, twenty-two in all—knelt in sobbing prayers, arms raised toward a sky just beginning to lighten in the dawn.

SHOOT TO KILL ORDER GIVEN

With orders to "shoot to kill" a heavily armed guard surrounded the state armory at Fourteenth and Mission streets early today following reports that the building was to be blown to bits by dynamite.
An unidentified woman "tipped" police of the plot after she assertedly overheard a conversation in a Mission street garage. Police notified Captain William Kirby of the 250th Coast Artillery, who immediately posted the guard and issued the "shoot to kill" order.
The guard's intelligence staff heard the same report along the waterfront. They reported that they heard the armory would "be blown to bits by 4 a.m." No attempt had been made against the building by 5 a.m. today.
"We have taken all precautions possible," said Kirby. "We have guards all around the building with orders to shoot any loiterer who will not stop for questioning."

In a confrontation yesterday, police used tear gas to disperse rioting strikers on Montgomery Street.

Glacier Found Under Colorado Highway

HOT SULPHUR SPRINGS, Colo., July 5 (AP).—A mountain of ice was uncovered today by highway crews working a mile east of here and geologists speculated as to whether it was an old glacier or an inland sea that had been frozen perhaps a million years ago.
Mixed with the ice were sea shells, salt and sand similar to that found on ocean beaches.
When steam shovels bit into the huge body of ice the foreman in charge of the job believed he had struck a wall of granite. He sent to Denver for special tools and then found by drilling into the mass that it was solid ice.

The strange formation was discovered about twenty feet underground while the crew was excavating a deep cut for a new state road.
The drill holes indicated the ice extends to a depth of about fifty feet and extends over an area the dimension of which has not been determined.

BLAST ROCKS N CAR, 1 HURT

A terrific explosion that rocked an outbound N car in the Duboce tunnel, Cole and Carl streets, injuring one woman passenger, striking terror into ten others and shattering four windows, was revealed today by Municipal Railway officials.
The blast, which occurred at 10:05 last night, led police to start an investigation into the possible spread of strike sabotage to the San Francisco street railway system.
Street car officials said their employees had received numerous threats by strikers, urging them to join the walkout.
The injured woman, Mrs. A. C. Honey of 1451 Thirty-first avenue, was cut about the face and hands by flying glass, but refused hospital treatment.
The blast flung the heavy car off the tracks as it entered the west end of the Duboce tunnel, a heavy charge of explosive apparently having been placed on the rails.

Unmarried Germans Asked to Quit Jobs

BERLIN, July 5 (AP).—All unmarried men and women in Berlin under 25 were urged today in an appeal signed by various party organizations to surrender their jobs voluntarily to married workers.
In addition to this "sacrifice for the state," the unmarried workers were asked to offer themselves for labor on farms where they can "live and work in fresher and freer air."

Soviet Doooms 2 to Die as Horse Thieves

MOSCOW, July 5 (AP).—Two men were sentenced to death today by a provincial court for horse stealing.
Thirteen others were given prison terms for thefts in the Pskov district of Moscow province.

New York Sizzles Under Heat Wave

NEW YORK, July 5 (AP).—New York drooped today under the sixteenth day of abnormal heat, a hot spell that has never been exceeded in local weather bureau records.

Enigma Woman in New Slay Defense

LOS ANGELES, July 5 (INS).—Mrs. Nellie Madison, "enigma woman," today calmly planned a new line of defense which she hopes will save her from the gallows, on which she has been condemned to die September 24 for the murder of her husband, Eric D. Madison, movie studio cafe worker.
Mrs. Madison's attorney announced he can prove the slain man was not Madison, and that Madison is now alive in Chicago.

Indians Gather For Wash. Meeting

WHITE SWAN, WASH., July 5 (AP).—Indians from eastern and western Washington, Idaho, Montana and Oregon were arriving today at the old camp grounds south of here for the ten day convention of the Yakima tribe.
Living as did their forefathers, the tribesmen will occupy teepees erected in the sage brush covered hills. They will spend their days with athletic contests, horse racing and games and their evenings with dancing.

Wallace Tells Plan For Hog, Beef Curb

WASHINGTON, July 5 (AP).—Secretary Wallace told newsmen today the farm administration's cattle buying program would adjust present surpluses of beef cattle and that control of hog production next year probably would center on control of feed crops.

SHOTS FLY IN E. BAY, 1 DYING

Strikebreaker, Attacked in Alameda, Wounds Man; Four in Flight

New strike violence broke out in Alameda today, leaving one man in dying condition as khaki clad sentries with bayoneted rifles replaced the police guard on the waterfront.
Clayton Miner, 27, striking stevedore, 540 Fortieth street, Oakland, was believed fatally shot while attempting to beat a strikebreaker, who was boarding a train in Alameda for San Francisco.
Charles L. Tibbard, 45, 3262 Thompson street, Alameda, was held for questioning in connection with the shooting. Tibbard told police he is an electrician employed by the Matson Navigation Company.
According to police reports, Miner and another man attacked Tibbard and while one man jumped on Tibbard's back, Miner was shot as he approached from the front.
In the business section of the city a police guard was placed around the Pelicano-Rossi florist shop at 123 Kearny street, formerly conducted by Mayor Rossi, after rocks had been hurled through two large plate glass windows.

2 DEAD, 70 HURT

A check today revealed two men dead, 27 persons, including one woman, wounded by flying bullets, and 43 others suffering from cuts, bruises, beatings and tear gas as a result of pitched battles between police and strikers and strike sympathizers.
The dead are Howard Sperry, 49, 445 Gough street, a striking seaman and member of the International Seaman's Union, and George Coundourakis, a striking member of the Marine Cooks and Stewards' Union.
A warning to the San Francisco public to stay away from the strike area was issued today by Colonel R. E. Mittelstaedt, commanding the Two Hundred and Fiftieth Coast Artillery and in charge of the National Guard assigned to waterfront duty.
"Law and order will be preserved at any cost," Colonel Mittelstaedt declared in his warning.
Police chief William J. Quinn added his warning to that of the National Guard officer. He said:
"Persons flocking to the waterfront as sightseers are making the work of the police unnecessarily difficult and are jeopardizing their own lives. If innocent bystanders insist on mingling with the rioters, it will not be the fault of the police if they get hurt."

LINES OF STEEL ON DOCK FRONT

Police, relieved from waterfront duty, launched an immediate investigation of a street car explosion, at the entrance to the Duboce tunnel which rocked the car, injured one woman passenger and shook up ten other passengers.

Possible connection of the blast with strike activities, in view of attempts to get carmen to go on strike, was investigated.

Under command of Colonel R. E. Mittelstaedt, working under Major General David P. Barrows, commanding officer of the Fortieth Division, the force on the waterfront was expected to number 2000 men—the full complement unless reinforcements are needed. Several hundred additional troops are mobilized in Northern California counties, including units of the 18th Infantry.

General Barrows personally made a tour of the waterfront "no man's land" today. "There are rumours," the general said, "that the presence of the guard here may cause flareups elsewhere. However, we are prepared to handle any such occasion."

At a press conference, Colonel C. D. O'Sullivan, guard intelligence and press relation officer, announced that guardsmen would be put on State Belt Line trains later in the day.

With the 159th infantry stationed to the north of the Ferry Building and the 250th coast artillery to the south, police still maintained a guard on the western rim of the Embarcadero and the adjacent downtown district.

The two mile front was girded by a continuous line of steel—guardsmen with all the implements of warfare—as the Industrial Association moved the first of the fleet of ten trucks from pier 38 at 8 a.m. to the association's warehouse on King street.

Fifty truckloads of goods were transported from the dock yesterday, the association announced. More trucks may be added today and opening of another dock begun.

Officers of the Belt Line reported that all demands for cars and switching were met, after operations had been shut down between 7 p.m. and 7 a.m., while the military took hold of the situation.

Grisly Discovery On Peninsula

Children playing near the Sneath Road intersection with Skyline Boulevard discovered a burned out 1932 Ford sedan at about 8:00 p.m. Thursday evening. Two bodies, charred beyond recognition, were found in the back seat of the vehicle. The victims have been removed to San Mateo for identification by the Medical Examiner.

Billy Kern, 19, 2405 Pacific Avenue, San Francisco, the registered owner of the car, is being sought by the police for questioning concerning this crash. He is also considered as a possible material witness in the shooting death of Sam Thacker on the Fourth of July. According to the deceased youth's parents, Thacker and Kern went camping together the evening before the holiday outing which ended in death.

TWO HANGED AT STATE PRISONS

Chanting, "The Lord is my shepherd, I shall not want—" John Mick, 22, the second of three negroes condemned to death for a holdup killing on the Mojave desert, dropped through the gallows trap at San Quentin prison yesterday.

He was pronounced dead ten minutes after the trap was sprung.

Almost at the same time, at Folsom prison, Daniel Harris, 38, was executed for the murder of a Contra Costa County jeweler during a holdup last year.

"Get it over quick," Harris asked as he mounted the thirteen steps of the scaffold. Death claimed him in thirteen minutes.

Mick was accompanied to the gallows by the Rev. E. J. Magruder of the First American Methodist Episcopal Church of San Francisco.

One of Mick's accomplices, George Williams, was hanged last Friday. The third member of the murder trio, Walter Lippy, 23, will go to his death next Friday in a double execution with Jose Aragon, 25, Riverside County killer.

Meanwhile, Warden James P. Holohan, was frankly bewildered at what to do with Mrs. Nellie Madison, former Montana cowgirl, convicted in Los Angeles for the slaying of her husband, Eric, movie studio cafe manager.

"We have no place for women in San Quentin," Warden Holohan "and the state prison for women at Tehachapi has no gallows."

"We've never hanged a woman at San Quentin. In fact, a woman has never been hanged in the history of California. But I guess we can do it alright."

Piano Loving Lunatic Escapes State Asylum

Topaz Munro, aged approximately 21, a light-skinned negro male, five foot four inches tall, weight about 140 pounds, is reported to be missing from the state hospital at Napa where he has been a patient since December, 1933. Doctors found his room in the locked ward empty during a routine roll call yesterday evening.

Dr. William McKillian, in charge of the locked ward, said that Munro was severely disturbed, but he had yet to determine if Munro was violent or dangerous. The doctor did say that Munro was obsessed with pianos and piano music.

Woman Hitch Hiker Fires San Jose Jail

SAN JOSE, July 5 (INS).—Startled police saw a cloud of smoke pouring from the woman's cell of the city jail here today. They rushed in to find flames leaping from the bed on which Mrs. H.C. Sanford, 22, Los Angeles hitch hiker, lay. She was asleep.

She had gone to sleep with a cigarette in her mouth, it was discovered. She was taken from the cell uninjured and the fire extinguished.

War Declared on Unlicensed Dogs

War on unlicensed dogs will begin in San Mateo on July 15, under orders given the poundman today by the city council.

On recommendation by the City Manager E.P. Wilsey, the council ordered a three month drive on unlicensed dogs by a fulltime poundman. Wilsey was also authorized to apply to SERA for funds to construct a pound building.

GANG ACCOUNTANT MASSACRED WHILE IN POLICE CUSTODY

Alleged underworld bookkeeper Jack Bier was brutally murdered yesterday. The shooting took place at 3:21 p.m. on the fifth floor of Herbert's Hotel and Grill, 151 Powell.

Bier was apparently in police custody at the time of the shooting. No police officers were injured in the gun battle at the downtown hotel.

Police sources refused to divulge information on why Bier was in custody, but he has been strongly linked in the past with bookkeeping operations for Frank "Fatty" Mirabelli, a powerful figure in the city's underworld. It is widely conjectured that Bier was the "gangbuster" arrested by Hall of Justice officials late last week. An unidentified but highly-placed source within the District Attorney's office indicated that the mysterious criminal had agreed to turn state's evidence against major criminals in return for prosecution on lesser charges.

Police spokesmen refused to acknowledge any such agreement between Bier and the prosecutor's office, but District Attorney Benning Wentworth late last night issued an all points bulletin for the apprehension of Mirabelli for questioning in connection with the shooting.

Bier's death shocked more than just the police department, since his apprehension was zealously guarded from the public eye. Police spokesman Sandor Nagosc told reporters that, for security reasons, no one had been informed except Bier's family and attorney.

Nagosc then issued a blistering denunciation of the city's daily newspapers, charging them with a "lion's share in the complicity of" Bier's death. Said Nagosc, Nagosc steadfastly refused to allow reporters to interview Officers Barry Lasnier and Alan McCabe, who were guarding Bier at the time of the attack.

Police quickly sealed off the scene of the crime and steadfastly declined to comment on circumstances surrounding the murder.

BLUM'S WIDOW CUT OFF

Shortly before Jack B. Blum, chain candy store and restaurant owner, was buried today, his will, disinheriting his widow, was filed for probate.

Attorney Nat Schmulowitz, named as executor in the will, appeared before Judge Frank H. Dunne and was granted special letters of administration. Then he attended the funeral. Blum died yesterday.

The will, specifically disinheriting the widow, Lillian, leaves the large estate of undetermined value to his daughters, Mrs. Clarence Blum Levy, Los Angeles, and Miss Barbara Blum, living with her mother at 1 Jordan avenue.

A codicil, dated June 15, gives Miss Bonny Braun, 41, Malorca way, designated as a "friend," all Blum's personal property, including his automobile, jewelry, furnishings of his apartment and his country home at Forest Lake, Santa Cruz County.

Blum explained in the will that he and his wife had entered into a property settlement in 1930 under which she waived all right to inherit.

The marital troubles of the Blums were before the courts for several months prior to this asserted property settlement.

KING JOYFUL AS JACOBS DEFEATED

MISS ROUND DEFEATS U.S. GIRL

S.F. Player First Woman to Appear in Shorts Before Queen

WIMBLEDON, Eng., July 6 (INS).—Dorothy Round, Great Britain's No. 1 player, today defeated Helen Jacobs, America's No. 1, to win the all-England tennis championship. The score was 6-2, 5-7, 6-3.

The crowd went wild as victor and loser shook hands at the net. The usually staid English gave Miss Round one of the most tumultuous ovations ever seen in a tennis stadium. The crowd stamped, yelled and clapped hands. Even King George and Queen Mary seemed beside themselves with joy.

Miss Round is the first English-woman to win the title since L.A. Godfree held it in 1898. The tall, slender young lady who will celebrate her twenty-fifth birthday next Friday defeated Miss Jacobs in the final round of the hard court championships of Great Britain last year, and although she was eliminated by Miss Jacobs in the American championships, her victory today was neither a surprise nor an upset. Miss Jacobs lost because she was unable to combat the English girl's marvelous forehand driving, which was the best seen here in many years and which gained point after point.

POOR DECISIONS
Dorothy's successful number of forehand placements staggered even the old timers. Helen often stood helpless as the ball whizzed past her.

The worst line decisions ever seen in a major championship in England not only frequently upset both girls but aroused the anger of the crowd and led to much "barracking" of the officials, which is the English equivalent of the bird or the Bronx cheer.

Arrested are James Burke, 30, and Walter Dougherty, 26, who, Conroy declared, attacked him when he got off a car at Third and Mission streets. The patrol car, carrying Officers C.W. Bahr and Eugene Atkinson, arrived while the battle was still in progress and seized the pair.

2 HELD IN SF $17,000,000 RUM RING

Father and Son Released in Seattle After Posting $100,000 Bonds

Two wealthy Canadians were under arrest in Seattle today and facing a $17,250,000 federal suit, while authorities moved to ensnare others associated with them in an alleged Pacific Coast liquor smuggling ring that included San Francisco in its operations.

The men under arrest are Henry Reifels, president of Brewers and Distillers, Ltd., Vancouver, B.C., and his son, George C. Reifels. They are at liberty under $100,000 bond each.

OPERATE IN S.F.
The liquor ring according to federal authorities, operated in San Francisco and other Pacific Coast port cities, smuggling Canadian bonded liquors into the United States, International News Service dispatches said.

Officials of the local alcohol tax unit revealed that the alleged ring has been under investigation for some time.

The move to capture other alleged members of the ring was to prevent their flight from the country, it was said. Prohibition law violation and tariff law violation are not extraditable offenses under Canadian-American treaties.

Coincident with the arrests, Special Assistant United States Attorney General Sam E. Whitaker filed a civil suit in Seattle federal court, asking a judgment of $17,250,000 from Reifels and others.

TAXES, DUTIES DUE
This staggering sum represents, Whitaker says, asserted duties, customs penalties and internal revenue taxes alleged to have been evaded.

At the office of J.H. Maloney, supervisor of the alcohol tax unit, it was said that these two men reputedly are members of a ring which has operated here and in other Pacific Coast cities for several years.

According to United States Attorney Charles Dennis, Seattle, the ring's operation outrivaled in magnitude the famous Olmstead liquor conspiracy.

Reifels and his son, reputedly wealthy Canadians, were charged by the government with smuggling bonded Canadian liquors into the United States through Pacific Coast ports.

Reifels and his son refused to discuss the charges, dispatches said, but issued a statement through their attorney, Don G. Eggerman, in which they denied they had violated the law of the United States in any way.

DILLINGER TRAP SET, BUT---

SAN DIEGO, July 6 (AP).—Police got all set to capture John Dillinger, outlaw, who was reported hiding in near-by Ocean Beach. They didn't capture him, because the man at Ocean Beach wasn't Dillinger.

An Ocean Beach resident told police he just had rented a house to three men and a woman and was positive one of the men was Dillinger. He even identified a police photograph of Dillinger as the man who had rented his house. Police squads, carrying eight shotguns, two machine guns, six gas bombs and a gas gun, rushed to the house.

But by the time officers arrived, the Ocean Beach citizen had decided his tenant wasn't Dillinger, as he was too young, too tall, and weighed too much.

Hickman Murder Trial Set For Monday

Alibi Will Be Chief Factor of Defense

The trial of Millard Hickman, dapper marine engineer, on charges of slaying Louise Jeppesen, pretty Ogden, Utah, girl, in Golden Gate Park last May, will be started Monday before Superior Judge Lyle T. Jacks.

Prosecution and defense revealed today that they are ready to proceed.

"We will not seek any delay," Defense Attorney Harry McKenzie said.

"The state will ask the death penalty," Assistant District Attorney Peter Mullins asserted.

Hickman has been in jail since his arrest on Mothers' Day, May 13.

The girl's body, still warm, was found in a tunnel near the old stadium in Golden Gate Park early Sunday morning, after she had attended a gay party the night before in Hickman's hotel suite.

A panel of eighty-five men and women from all walks of life has been summoned for examination as prospective jurors. Mullins said he believed that a jury will be selected by Tuesday afternoon.

"From my past experience," McKenzie said, "I do not believe that a jury will be completed until Thursday." I cannot

NEW ANTI-TOXIN FOR PARALYSIS

As science prepared a new anti-toxin to be used in the war against infantile paralysis, Dr. J.C. Geiger, health director, laid plans today to expend $10,503 to combat the disease during July in San Francisco.

The appropriation was recommended by the supervisors' finance committee yesterday, with approval of Mayor Rossi, and will come before the board on Monday for approval.

Dr. Geiger warned that although the disease was apparently waning here, there would be danger of recurrence of the epidemic until September. Only one case was reported during the last twenty-four hours, with no new cases in Alameda County.

Associated Press reported that a new serum perfected by Dr. John A. Kolmer, bacteriologist head of Temple University's medical staff, after years of research was ready for its final experiments with living "test tubes."

While hundreds of persons throughout the nation have offered their lives if need be in search for a cure for the disease, Dr. Kolmer said no actual inoculations would be made with the serum until papers describing it had been submitted to the American Medical Association.

The anti-toxin had undergone a long series of successful tests with monkeys as subjects and is now ready for the final stage of the experiment—human beings. Volunteers will be chosen for the tests.

STRIKE MOVE IN HANDS OF 7 MEN

Strike Committee Formed

Action on a general strike in San Francisco in sympathy with the maritime walk-out today is in the hands of seven men.

The seven, comprising a "strike strategy committee of the San Francisco Labor Council," were named by Edward Vandeleur, president of the council, and have met immediately to take initial steps.

The following labor leaders comprise the committee:

Daniel Hagerty, past president of the Labor Council and the State Federation of Labor; Frank Brown, secretary-treasurer of the Molders' Union; Charles Derry, editor of the Labor Clarion; M.F. Maxwell, president of the State Federation of Butchers; George Kidwell, secretary-treasurer of the Bakery Wagon Drivers; John A. O'Connell, secretary of the Labor Council, and Vandeleur.

On the heels of their appointment, the committee members met at the Labor Temple, with members of striking maritime organizations invited to appear before them.

Linn Endorses Johnson For Re-election

By MILT PHINNEY

Clarence A. Linn, San Francisco attorney and prominent Democrat, added his endorsement today to the hundreds received for Hiram W. Johnson, candidate for re-election to the United States Senate.

"The political life of Hiram W. Johnson," Attorney Linn stated, "is striking testimony to the fact that democracy is safe."

"For a quarter of a century this great Californian has served the people of his state. He has never evaded a momentous issue. Candor and intellectual honesty have ever marked his career. Social justice and governmental integrity have motivated his life."

"As a Democrat, I deem it a public duty to urge that Hiram W. Johnson be returned to the United States Senate by the unanimous vote of the people of this state, whom he has represented so illustriously."

"Such action by California will hearten Franklin D. Roosevelt and strengthen the 'New Deal.'"

20 Year 5 Pct. Loans Near

Federal savings and loan associations will be in a position to make twenty year home loans, bringing home ownership within the reach of all, as the monthly repayments of principal and interest on these terms amounts to $6.60 per $1000 borrowed, or monthly repayments of $19.80 for an average small home loan of $3000, according to Edward Lane, who has established offices at 70 Post street to help further this program.

BARRY BALDWIN, Manila businessman, together with his younger brothers, Harry and Mewland Baldwin, are guests of the Sir Francis Drake Hotel.

Baldwin the elder is on his way to Virginia where he will place his two brothers in the Virginia Military Institute. He plans to return to Manila by way of this city next October.

MR. AND MRS. W. I. MCGREGOR, from New Zealand are guests of the Sir Francis Drake Hotel. They plan to stay in California for several months, making their headquarters in San Francisco while in the state.

ROMAN MARTINIS, Havana businessman, is a guest of the Sir Francis Drake Hotel.

BODY HIDDEN IN PENSION PLOT

SENECA, Kan., July 6 (INS).—Postal authorities today were delving into the weird story of Mrs. Myrtle Latimer, 55, who revealed she kept hidden in her home here for two and a half years the partly cremated and dismembered body of her mother, Mrs. Marietta Bishop, 88, so she might continue to collect a $40 monthly Civil War pension check.

Discovery of the dead woman's remains was made after County Attorney Harry Lanning and Sheriff C. F. Carman forced their way into the home and frustrated an attempt by Mrs. Latimer to end her life by swallowing chloroform.

The torso was found in a trunk in an outbuilding.

During the two and a half years she received the pension checks Mrs. Latimer, regarded as an eccentric, was careful to prevent visitors from entering her home, informing all callers that her mother was too ill or too busy to see them or was out of town.

The woman's weird revelation was precipitated by refusal of Postmaster W. I. Kauffman to surrender the pension check to the daughter, demanding that it be delivered to the mother personally.

"But mother is bathing," Mrs. Latimer told Kauffman.

The postmaster suggested that a woman clerk with him take the check to the mother. Mrs. Latimer promptly slammed the door and later was seen walking along the highway near here. When she returned the next day Lanning and Carman broke into the house and heard her gruesome story.

In September, numerous labor conventions are to be held, it was stated. These include the national convocation of the metal trades department and the building trades department of the American Federation of Labor and the national convention of the A. F. of L. and several other labor conclaves.

ROCKEFELLER 95, QUILTS ALL ACTIVITY

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN

LAKELAND, N.J., July 6 (INS). John D. Rockefeller will be 95 years old tomorrow and slowly—invariably—the famous philanthropist is slipping out of the limelight into a serene, settled and somnolent existence.

The reason is not so much illness as it is age—the fact he has exceeded the allotted "three score and ten" by twenty-five years.

How long the old gentleman will live is, of course, anybody's guess. But no one who knows him well doubts that he will live beyond the ripe age of 100.

His personal physician, Dr. Robert Buerman of Lakewood, expresses no fear for his health but says he must have no excitement or undue physical exercise, that's why he has had to give up golf.

"John D." hasn't played golf, his favorite game, this year. Not many years back he played nine holes a day. Gradually he cut the distance to seven holes, then five, and finally three holes to avoid fatigue.

Now his only form of recreation is occasional automobile rides within his estate here.

No need of stressing Mr. Rockefeller's condition," Dr. Buerman told International News Service today. "Considering his advanced age he is in good shape. He is going along much as usual except that he has given up golf."

Rockefeller takes his motor rides within his estate here, which is situated about a mile from the business section of Lakewood. It comprises 500 acres and is surrounded by a wire fence topped with barbed wire.

Highway Patrolman Forced Into Ditch

Forced into a ditch by a motorist who did not stop, James B. Dalziel, state highway patrolman in San Mateo County, suffered injuries that today kept him in Mills Memorial Hospital.

Dalziel made his way to the county relief home, near where the accident occurred, and was taken to the hospital. He suffered chest injuries and fractured ribs.

Police Killer Absolved

Louis H. Downs, 20, baby-faced Oakland police killer, serving a life term in San Quentin prison, today was freed of complicity in the bloody prison break of March 12, when the district attorney decided there was insufficient evidence to convict.

Downs was accused of having committed assault while already serving time for murder in the escape attempt—a crime punishable by death.

Lunatic Still at Large

Topaz Munro, the Napa State Hospital inmate who escaped on Friday has not yet been apprehended. The search of the Napa area has been thorough, but the inability of the authorities to find Munro has led them to conclude that it is possible he has left the area. Napa police now theorize that the piano-fancying escapee may make his way to either Los Angeles or San Francisco, where he is known to have friends.

Germany's Chancellor, Adolph Hitler, rides with President Von Hindenburg in Berlin.

Nazi Killings Continue, Toll Now 200, Says Writer

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER

International News Service Staff Correspondent

BERLIN, July 6 (INS).—Despite a government statement that executions ended a week ago, International News Service learned today from an authoritative source that killings continued all week, at least until last night.

Today the government finally resolved to issue a death list—of forty-six names—which will be made public Monday.

Government circles, however, admit privately that at least 170 persons were killed in the "purging" process and that 200 would be a reasonable estimate.

This figure includes several persons killed during the terror, which gave an opportunity to some terrorists to slay anyone they disliked. Their names and the names of relatively unknown persons will not be published.

The political situation continued to the fore today, and it was learned that Vice Chancellor Von Papen, whose retention or dismissal from the cabinet has become such a vital issue, will go to Neudeck next week to see President Von Hindenburg, his sponsor. This will be Von Papen's first opportunity to give Von Hindenburg his version of the exciting events of the past week.

FIRST KILLINGS NUMB PUBLIC

The first reaction of the German public on news of the death of General Kurt Von Schleicher was numb astonishment. The news of the death of Colonel Ernst Roehm stirred the people again.

Official communiques that Roehm and Von Schleicher had been engaged in a conspiracy to overthrow the government were implicitly believed.

This feeling of public approval of Chancellor Adolph Hitler's action was increased by the cleverly disseminated version that if Roehm had succeeded he would have murdered all other members of the cabinet except Hitler, then force Hitler to be nominated head of a government of storm troopers.

By Wednesday, however, the public had already learned by word of mouth that the killings had gone much further than the official communiques admitted.

To neutral observers it is incredible that the killings could have started in cold blood, without any excuse save the desire to get rid of potential enemies. Certainly it must be assumed Hitler personally was convinced of the necessity of his action.

But because the government has issued no list of dead and has given no details of the plot, public skepticism, anxiety and dread has now reached large proportions.

Mirabelli Held As Hotel Killer

Police arrested Frank "Fatty" Mirabelli Friday morning, charging him with the murder of Jack Bier, the alleged killer's accountant.

Police department spokesman Sandor Nagosc told reporters that "irrefutable" ballistics evidence linked Mirabelli, alleged head of a major racketeering operation, with the gruesome slaying at Herbert's Hotel and Grill north of Market.

Mirabelli was wanted for questioning in connection with the event Thursday, but police issued a warrant for his arrest following the release of the ballistics report early Friday morning.

"There is no doubt in the minds of anyone here that the bullets that killed Bier were from a gun found at Mirabelli's house this morning," Nagosc said yesterday afternoon.

According to police reports, the suspected murder weapon was seized Friday at Mirabelli's Castro District home. Mirabelli was apprehended at his office two hours later.

James J. Roach, attorney for Mirabelli, refused to discuss the case with reporters.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. CORNELIUS BECKMAN

TIPS ON TIPS

Dear Mrs. Beckman: Will you kindly settle an argument about tipping? Is it correct for girls to tip when they go to restaurants either alone or with a group of girls?

Edith: Yes, except in restaurants where it is especially made clear that a no tipping system is in effect, we are expected to tip the waiter or waitress. This holds true for girls alone or with a group of girls, just as it does for men alone or with a group of men.

(Mrs. Beckman will be glad to answer questions on Good Manners submitted by readers.)

SAILING FROM GIBRALTER ON July 3 for San Francisco, Mrs. Algernon Crofton returns home with such a memory as comes but once in a lifetime.

Mrs. Crofton was in Madrid for the christening ceremony of her grandson, the third son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis de Laveaga Cebrian.

The ceremony conducted with the most elaborate formalities, was witnessed by American Ambassador Bowers and Mrs. Bowers, the Marquesa de Torre Milanos, the Contessa de Forida, Mr. John C. Cebrian and Mr. and Mrs. Miguel Sarrey. Mrs. Sarrey was Miss Beatrice Cebrian.

Godfather to the infant was Senor Ortega Morejon, chief justice of the Spanish court under King Alfonso, and the Marquesa de la Fontera served as godmother.

ROUND TRIUMPH

Miss Jacobs appeared in cream flannel shorts with a blue stripe running down the seams and many an eye was cast toward the royal box to see how Queen Mary was reacting to this costume. Miss Jacobs was the first girl ever to appear in shorts before Her Majesty. What the queen thought did not become apparent to the interested fans. The fans themselves liked it.

HELEN RALLIED

Miss Jacobs won the opening game of the first set on her own service but seemed to go to pieces when several bad decisions went against her, and the English girl took the set rather handily.

She rallied gamely to take the second set when she got her chop strokes working, but although she fought hard and played brilliantly in the final set, she could not conquer an inspired opponent at the peak of her game.

Dorothy broke though Helen's service in the final set and Helen returned the compliment with the crowd wildly cheering every winning point.

The American won the third game and Dorothy squared it on the fourth. Games then went with service until the eighth which Dorothy won and then broke through Helen's service to win the set, match and title.

Intense concentration shows in Helen Jacobs' eyes as she serves to Dorothy Round.

Perhaps people are "tired of war pictures," yet they will relapse from this state of mind, to make a place in their appreciations for "Shock," the new top-of-the-bill at the Fox Theater.

"Shock" is a war picture, purely and simply, as far as the background goes. But it has also a full measure of value both in production, story and dramatic talent, and an unusual treatment of the shell-shock malady that came with high explosives.

Ralph Forbes is the star of "Shock." Here he finds a vehicle well suited to his powers. Forbes, as a soldier, is at his best. The girl in the lead is young and beautiful Gwendolyn Gill, one of Paramount's "baby stars."

This is a fine, powerful picture with a happy ending.

HOLLYWOOD, July 6 (INS).—Death rang down the curtain today for two men who have played important roles in the development of the moving picture.

They were Alec H. Francis, 65, silver-haired character actor, and Harry Pollard, 55, veteran director.

They died within a few hours of each other, and each is mourned by a wide circle of friends in the film colony.

Francis was best known to the public through a succession of distinguished and sympathetic roles. Casting directors considered him ideal for pictures calling for a British nobleman, a kindly minister, an aristocratic butler or an elderly man of the world.

Pollard, whose wife, the former Margarita Fischer, was known as "The American Beauty," succumbed to a heart ailment.

Unlawful Violence Never Righted a Wrong

Law and Safety of Citizens Are Paramount

Rioting is holding sway along the waterfront of San Francisco. Guns have spoken and men have died in hot blood.

Troops have been called, and today this city faces the terror of further futile and bloody combat between men who have been unable to settle their differences without drawing the sword.

Either there can be one of two things: government or disorders.

The two are utterly opposing forces and deny the existence of the other.

Every person living in the bay district is affected. Every person will suffer if sides, but no wrong was ever righted by violence.

Force is a frightful thing. It leaves in its wake deep wounds that take long to heal. The existence of the other.

Every person living in the bay district is affected. Every person will suffer if sides, but no wrong was ever righted by violence.

Force is a frightful thing. It leaves in its wake deep wounds that take long to heal.

Force suspends the rules of moral obligations and what is long suspended is in danger of being totally abrogated.

Safety of citizens of San Francisco is, after all, the paramount issue today.

The sole reason for the presence of the National Guard on our waterfront is the protection of life and property, without which a government is useless.

The citizens of this city stand behind two demands:

First, law and order must prevail.

Second, both sides must arbitrate without delay.

Both sides must dedicate their forces to the same cause—cessation of this strife.

Whatever the faults of either side, no cause can be ennobled by violence.

It was for this reason that the force of the law had to be used to cope with the situation.

It is wilful and unthinking for opponents to carry on this struggle, and it must be adjusted at once without further shedding of blood.

It is NOT too late to turn back on a mistaken course.

Anything gained by unlawful violence is not worth the sacrifice of one single life.

Peace will rule when reason also rules the mind of those in control.

SPALDING CASE IS SHIFTED

Mrs. Pauline Boyer's long fight to compel Baird T. Spalding, former mystic writer of this city, to support Jacquelin, her 5 year old daughter, has struck another snag.

The case, which has been bandied about the court for a year and a half, is back on the bench of the presiding judge, Walter Perry Johnson, to be assigned once more for a hearing.

It was in the court of Judge Stephen J. Roche. But judge Roche spoke his mind freely, declared that "on the record" he was convinced the 68 year old man is the little girl's father, and asserted Spalding has been evading justice by "hiding out" in Arizona.

Whereupon Ray C. Bennett, Arizona attorney, who represents Spalding with A.C. Keane of this city and was appearing in the case for the first time, said he wanted some other judge to try it.

"The doors are wide open," declared Judge Roche. "This case is a disgrace. If you can get any other judge to try it I shall be perfectly willing."

Keane and Bennett, with attorney Lenore D. Underwood, representing Mrs. Boyer, went before Judge Johnson, the presiding judge conferred with Roche, the latter repeated what he had said and the defendant's attorneys won their point to have the case tried before another court.

Inspector John F. Dolan, who had come into court with a Los Angeles warrant for Spalding's arrest, believing the defendant would be present, departed empty handed.

The warrant was predicated on a 1931 order of the Los Angeles municipal court, directing Spalding to pay $30 a month for Jacquelin's support.

Burglars Strike at Home of Noted Collector

Late Thursday night burglars struck at the home of noted art collector Miss Ellen Pembroke at 1239 Taylor, getting away with numerous objects of both real and sentimental value according to the victim.

According to the police, Miss Pembroke returned to her home just after midnight to find that her prized Chinese puzzle box collection had been stolen along with several other Oriental artifacts. Unfortunately, the stolen boxes included some of Miss Pembroke's most valuable specimens which she had removed just that afternoon from the bank vault where they were ordinarily kept. She had removed them in order to display them at the Elk's Lodge where she was addressing the Ladies Auxiliary concerning her collection.

After her address, she had returned to her home briefly to drop off the artifacts which she had with her before proceeding to the Palace Hotel for a small reception. "I certainly couldn't have made it any easier for those burglars if I had tried. The boxes were sitting in the middle of the living room all packed up and ready to go," said the vivacious Miss Pembroke.

Police report that they do have some leads as to the identity of the burglars, but they declined to reveal any additional information.

L.A. MUSIC HEAD FACES ARREST IN BERLIN

BERLIN, July 7, (AP).—A warrant has been issued for the "temporary" arrest of Otto Klemperer, conductor of the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra—and guest conductor of the New York Philharmonic Society.

Klemperer, a Jew, was former musical director-general of the State Opera in Berlin.

The warrant for the arrest was issued by the Reich ministry of finance and was made public in the official gazette. It was also stated that the musician's property was to be confiscated.

Klemperer, who left Germany in 1933, was accused of tax evasion. It was said he owed the Reich treasury a tax payment "amounting roughly to 4550 marks ($1820) plus 5 per cent interest for every fourteen days."

The gazette warned Germans who were financially indebted to Klemperer not to repay their debts but to register them with the local tax office.

OFFICIALS AID DRIVE AGAINST CRIMINALS

California club women, district attorneys, lawyers and former judges today united in a campaign to curb crime in California, by making justice more speedy and more certain.

The statewide committee to further the drive against crime announces it will concentrate at the November elections in an effort to obtain the passage of four measures that will simplify criminal trials in California and change the procedure in murder trials so that the guilty may not escape through technicalities.

Hundreds of volunteer workers are circulating initiative petitions in order to qualify four proposals on the November ballot.

The group is the California Committee on Better Administration of Law. Miss Josephine G. Seaman of La Jolla, president of the California Federation of Women's Clubs and Mrs. Paul Eliel of Berkeley, president of the California League of Women Voters, head the list of committee members.

POLICE OFFICIALS AID

The committee includes Mrs. Irma Wann Buwalda, Pasadena, member of the Crime Problems Advisory Committee of California; Mrs. Agnes L. McEwen, Riverside, legislative chairman of the California Federation of Women's Clubs; Evan Haynes, Berkeley, professor of law, University of California; Earl Warren, Oakland, district attorney of Alameda County; Samuel G. Tompkins, San Jose attorney, who instigated the statewide move against crime; James E. Davies, Los Angeles, chief of police; Wm. J. Quinn, San Francisco, chief of police and Joseph R. Knowland, Oakland, president of the California State Chamber of Commerce, which coordinated the various groups of California in the study of administration of law.

Stanford Co-ed, Friend Dead in Crash

Bereaved Father Offers Reward

The victims of Wednesday's fiery crash off Skyline Boulevard on Sneath Road East have been positively identified from personal possessions and medical examination as Miss Zena Jones, 20, a student at Stanford University, and Miss Sherry Dillan, 19, of 2506 Pierce Street, San Francisco. Miss Jones, who was presented at the Golden Gate Collition in 1930, was the only child of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Jones of 23 Crescent Avenue, Hillsborough, noted patrons of the performing arts in San Francisco and Northern California, and supporters of the university in Palo Alto.

Police investigation of the crash which took the lives of the two young women on July fourth continues. According to a source close to the investigation, the victims were in the back seat of the car when it crashed. Possibly as many as three persons, identified from footprints found at the scene as two men and a woman, may have been thrown clear of the spinning car as it plunged from the road into the gully where it then burst into flames.

Mr. Douglas Jones, the victim's father, has offered a reward of $10,000 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of anyone criminally responsible for the death of his daughter. He refused an interview, but did say:

"I believe that there must be someone willing to help my wife and me find out how and why our daughter died."

San Mateo County Sheriffs hope that citizens who may have witnessed the crash or the subsequent fire will come forward to assist the investigation.

The king is allowed each year by Parliament £110,000 for his private nurse, £125,000 for household salaries, £193,000 for household expenses, and £11,200 for charities and little oddments, making a total of almost £170,000 or $2,350,000—this, of course does not include his private income. (What? No pin money?)

There is a firm in the city of London that doesn't know how old it is because all the firm's records were destroyed in the great Fire of London in the year 1666. (Beastly break, eh wot?)

The grandfather of Beatrice Lillie's late husband, Sir Robert Peel, was the originator of the police, first known as "peelers," and still called "Bobbies" after his christian name.

The largest private house in England is Knole Park, the home of Lord Sackville. It has 13 acres of roof, 365 bedrooms, 52 staircases, 12 immense courtyards—each larger than the one at Hampton Court—and seven galleries representing the days, weeks, months etc., of the year. Lord Sackville's son, who occupies a remote wing, uses his car when he wants to call on his father in a hurry.

Only 80 per cent of the offices in the city of London have elevators.

No policeman is allowed to carry a gun because "it would encourage criminals to do likewise." (Such a reason!)

The London General Omnibus Company is said to be the largest individual consumer of gasoline in the world.

The bowler hat was invented by Sir William Coke (pronounced Cook), and for a long time was called a "Billycock" after him.

You cannot buy a drink in London after midnight except on special occasions. Closing time varies in different localities, notably in Oxford street, where saloons on one side of the street can remain open for half an hour longer than those on the opposite side—hence the surge of people crossing the street at 11 p.m., which has puzzled Americans.

Although Buckingham Palace is the London Residence of the king, representatives of foreign powers, such as the American Ambassador, are still accredited to "the Court of St. James," although the St. James' Palace ceased to be a royal residence since 1837.

'Drunkard' For Orpheum Stage

In direct contrast to the present-day type of modern stage presentations, the Orpheum Theater, starting Friday, will offer for the first time on the stage of any motion picture theater, the five-act, thirteen-scene play, "The Drunkard, or The Fallen Saved."

The old-time scenery, including the front curtain, which rolls up and down, and usually descends with a bang at the close of each scene, is an important part of the show. Musical themes and cues and many sound effects are used to enhance the dramatic episodes, which are hilariously funny to present-day audiences.

The screen attraction which opens Friday is a Vicki Baum story, "I Give My Love," featuring Wynne Gibson, Paul Lukas, Eric Linden, Anita Louise, Sam Hardy and John Darrow. Vicki Baum, who also wrote "Grand Hotel," is said to have provided a powerful bit of creative writing in this story of a woman who sacrifices her life for her husband and son.

The current show, which closes Thursday night, features on the stage Ted Fio-Rito and his orchestra, with "Muzzy" Marcellino, the Three Debutantes, Ray Hendricks, June Marlow and Candy. On the screen is RKO-Radio's mystery-comedy thriller, "Murder on the Blackboard," with Edna May Oliver and James Gleason.

PARIS POLICE SEEK U.S. SPY LINK

BAN YOUNG GIRLS FROM COURT

Defense Lawyers Battle for Jury Composed of Men as Life Fight Begins

A grim battle over selection of a jury—a tribunal that must decide whether or not a man must die on the gallows—today opened the trial of Millard Hickman, dapper marine engineer, accused of slaying Louise Jeppesen, 20 year old Ogden, Utah girl.

Before a crowd that jammed the courtroom and hall reminiscent of the Frank Egan trial, opposing counsel questioned closely prospective jurors out of a panel of sixty-five.

Also reminding of the Egan trial was the preponderance of women and girls in the struggling throng seeking to hear details of the sensational case. Superior Judge Lile T. Jacks, before whom the trial is being heard, announced that he will ban all minor girls from the courtroom.

WEARS NATTY SUIT
In a natty slate blue suit, Hickman entered the court at 10:01 a.m. and calmly faced a battery of newspaper cameramen. Asked for some word, he said simply: "It all goes to show what troubles a person can get into without any doing of his own."

The first talesman to be questioned was Will C. Mahoney, former foreman of the federal grand jury, 2764 Pierce street.

Mahoney was questioned only briefly by

M'KAY-GRAHAM TRIAL TESTIMONY ATTACKED

NEW YORK, July 8. (AP).—A rapid fire of cross-examination questions was employed by an attorney today in an effort to wipe out identification of James C. McKay in connection with an alleged international swindling ring.

McKay, a gambling baron of Reno, Nevada, is on trial at Federal court, along with William J. Graham, also of Reno and John Eggleston of Worcester, Mass.

They are charged with misuse of the mails in a scheme to defraud.

Alister Forbes of Victoria, B.C., one of forty-two victims of the alleged ring, identified McKay Friday as a man whom he knew as "the manager" of the Riverside Bank of Reno in September, 1929. He said the Riverside Bank arranged for transfer of $30,000 from Victoria, B.C., the money being subsequently lost on a race track gag.

John Taafe, San Francisco attorney, attacked the testimony with a vigor that kept the attention of the jurors riveted upon him. He made Forbes tell just when he recognized McKay, and whether he discussed the recognition with George Pfann, assistant district attorney. The witness said he recognized McKay on Thursday, "but not definitely" and that he told Pfann merely that he had seen a man who was familiar.

"When I took the stand here Friday I saw him full face for the first time, and then I definitely recognized him," he said.

Taafe handed him a picture of Ray J. Frisch, missing cashier of the Riverside Bank, and asked him.

"Isn't that the man you saw?" Forbes squinted at it.

"I don't recall the face," he said.

Taafe asked the witness why he didn't describe McKay when he first made a

American Woman Sought in French Spy Quiz

6 New Writs Issued For Suspects

PARIS, July 9 (AP).—An American woman, Pauline Jacobson Levine, 32, was ordered today by Magistrate Andre Benon to appear for questioning in a new drive to clean up an alleged international ring of spies.

She was to be questioned regarding her relation to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gordon Switz of New Jersey, who have been held in a Paris jail for several months under espionage charges.

Six other summonses or warrants were issued in connection with the alleged espionage service with which the Switzes are linked. These included three women and three men.

One of the women ordered to appear was Mrs. Marie Schul Martin alleged chief of a section of the ring operating in Finland.

FRIEND OF SUSPECT
Mrs. Martin was said to be a close friend of Mme. Lydia Stahl, 48, divorced wife of a New York business man who, police say, was an intermediary between a French espionage band and one in Finland.

Authorities declared their latest investigations reveal that information was being gathered all over Europe, including France, concerning gas and microbe warfare.

"The new discoveries indicate that we are on the trail of developments of the first order," said one of the French investigators.

Mrs. Levine, whose maiden name was Pauline Jacobson, was supposed to have been in close contact with Mrs. Switz, the former Marjorie Tillery of New York.

MOLEY BRANDS NAZI MENACE

NEW YORK, July 8. (AP).—Raymond Moley, magazine editor and "brain-truster," today declared nazi propagandizing in the United States constituted a "menace" to the nation.

Moley, formerly assistant secretary of state, was the first witness before a special House committee on un-American activities in an open hearing that brought acknowledgement from another witness that "Stahlhelm" groups drilled regularly in New York City.

the fifteen prisoners under arrest, were apprehended December 18, 1933, and have been in jail ever since.

Mrs. Levine's whereabouts are not known at present, but Magistrate Benon wishes to question her in order to determine definitely what she knows, if anything, of the band's operations.

Also among others whom Magistrate Benon wants to question is Maurice Milice, recently arrested in provincial France in connection with alleged espionage activities.

No date has been set for the trial of Mr. and Mrs. Switz. Authorities said that of the new persons sought for questioning only Mrs. Levine is supposed to have any connection with the American couple.

Court Halts New Maine Beauty Law

PORTLAND, Me., July 8. (AP).—Federal Judge John A. Peters has issued an order temporarily restraining state and county officials from enforcing Maine's cosmetics law which levied registration fees on toilet preparations and required disclosure of their ingredients.

The order was issued at the request of the Liggett Drug Company, operators of stores in Maine, which declared the act to be unconstitutional.

Wife Hysterical Attorney Charges

Attorney F. Bruce McMullen sued Mrs. Portia McMullen today for divorce, alleging her hysterics made him so nervous he hardly could work.

They were married in Virginia in 1929, then separated last September, and from their marriage to their parting she constantly nagged, scolded, reviled and belittled him, McMullen avers. His complaint was drawn by Vincent W. Hallinan.

Paralysis, Victim

SONORA, July 8. (AP).—The first infantile paralysis fatality in Tuolumne County was reported here today with the death of Grant Jones Hill, 15, son of Mr. & Mrs. Stillman Amos Hill. The boy died Friday in the town of Tuolumne.

FIRST LADY SEES CHICAGO FAIR SIGHTS

CHICAGO, July 8. (AP).—Prefacing her visit with a plea to be treated "like any other sightseer," Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt today began her first tour of inspection of Chicago's 1934 World's Fair.

"I'm off the record this trip," she told newspapermen in what she said would be the only interview she would grant until she meets her husband in Portland, Oregon on his return from his Caribbean vacation cruise.

The first lady of the land began her day with a visit to a broadcasting studio to make arrangements for the sponsored talk which she will give tonight. After ten or fifteen minutes presumably devoted to voice tests, photographers and reporters were called into an audition room.

As innumerable flashbulbs clicked, Mrs. Roosevelt, seated before a dead microphone at a mahogany desk, made a declaration of her independence and told cameramen that from then on it would be a game of "hide and seek."

"This is not in any way an official trip," she said, with the familiar laugh in her voice. "When I am with my husband I have certain duties and must go through with them, but this time I'm on a holiday. I'm strictly off the record. I'm just a private individual seeing the fair."

Mrs. Roosevelt said she would keep her fair itinerary to herself, but that there were many things she had determined to see.

"There's one stop I'm most anxious to make," she said, "and that is to see a certain person in the Interior Department whom I met for the first time during my visit here last summer. I mean 'Slim' Williams, that interesting man from Alaska, who drove his dog team all the way to the fair. I want to see the dogs, too."

3 WOMEN TRY DEATH POTION

One woman was in critical condition and two others were apparently recovering following attempts on their lives by taking poison early today.

Mrs. Alice Hickey, 58, of 805 Sutter street, was in Central Emergency Hospital in serious condition after she was found in a downtown hotel room early today by attendants attracted there by her moans. She rented the room last night.

Evelyn Whitsel, 26, 3955 Seventeenth street, took poison upon her return to her home following an evening spent with Sam Chiolo, 424 Hanover street. Chiolo told police Miss Whitsel ran into the bathroom, locked the door and swallowed poison.

After calling police Chiolo battered down the door and the girl was rushed to Central Emergency Hospital, treated and discharged.

Mrs. Kay Barley, 34, 81 Elgin Park, swallowed poison after a quarrel with her mate. She took a taxi to Central Emergency Hospital, was treated and discharged.

DOVER, N.J., July 8. (AP).—Mrs. Cecil de Milles, wife of the Hollywood motion picture director, is in the Dover General Hospital, it was learned today, recovering from an operation. Her condition was described as fair.

BULLETS FLY AS PICKETS CLASH

Guards Rout Auto Loaded With Strikers Who Refuse to Move

Bullets whining along the waterfront in the first gun-fire clash since 2000 steelhelmeted National Guardsmen moved into the strike zone, have led to the erection of heavy-timbered barricades on the Embarcadero to block an asserted new plan of picketing strategy.

Six shots were fired into the skirmish, which flared near Pier 51 when a crowd of strikers gathered menacingly and refused to obey the soldier-sentry's command to "move on."

Under an officer's order, the guardsman fired two shots over the heads of the crowd.

FIRE FOUR TIMES
Then, according to Police Captain Thomas Hoertkorn of Southern Station, a "trouble car" of pickets dashed up as the strikers on foot dispersed and four shots flamed from the speeding automobile. The soldiers dropped flat, escaping injury.

The car raced over the Fourth street bridge and disappeared before guardsmen or police could give chase.

National guard headquarters declared that the gun-fire had been returned.

On the heels of the gun fire episode, heavy wooden barricades were thrown up at frequent intervals along the waterfront.

The guard also banned all parking.

The thrust of the pickets was interpreted as an attempt to "feel out" the guard and see how far they could get in a new campaign of picketing.

Coincidentally, in Portland, Maurice L. Raphael, executive secretary to Mayor Rossi, was quoted by International News as telling Mayor Joseph Carson of Portland that settlement of the longshoremen's strike—now in its sixty-first day—is due Wednesday.

Raphael declined to enlarge on this statement.

Seen and Heard in San Francisco's Hotel Lobbies

LIEUTENANT ARTHUR W. BRYAN, U.S.N. retired, a guest at the Hotel Whitcomb, today paid high compliment to the boys who graduate from California's high schools.

Lieutenant Bryan conducts the Cochran, Bryant Coaching School at Annapolis, Md., where candidates for entrance to the military academy there and at West Point are coached in preparation for the entrance examinations.

"In examining boys from all sections of the country," said Lieutenant Bryan, "we have found that the boys who are graduates from the secondary schools in California make higher marks on the average than boys from other sections of the country."

The naval man rejoined his wife at the Whitcomb. Mrs. Bryan has spent several months in southern California. The couple plan to spend an additional two weeks in San Francisco visiting places of interest around the bay.

MRS. N.E. WILDE, Honolulu club-woman, is a guest of the Sir Francis Drake Hotel. Mrs. Wilde is on her way east to visit relatives in New York.

MR. & MRS. T.G. SUTER are guests of the Sir Francis Drake Hotel. Suter is a businessman of Johannesburg, South Africa. He and his wife are on tour of the world. They plan to spend the summer months in California.

HICKMAN LOSES KEY WITNESS

the prosecution after he declared that he had no prejudice in the case, but a twenty-minute grilling by Defense Attorney Harry McKenzie indicated the seriousness with which the defense considers the attitude of the jury.

McKenzie questioned Mahoney as to his attitude toward the moral conduct of the defendant and asked if he would be influenced in the trial by testimony on this point.

Mahoney answered he would not.
"If the defendant does not take the stand on his own behalf, would it prejudice you against him?"

The talesman answered, "No."
Asked later if he intended to keep Hickman from the stand during the trial, McKenzie said that he did not.

About this time a rumor trilled through the courtroom that an important witness in the case, Miss Margery May, with whom Hickman claimed he spent the day boating following the murder, had disappeared from the city and that police were conducting an intensive search for her.

Mahoney was passed temporarily by both sides and questioning turned to others on the panel.

Frederick Bray of Guernsey, Saskatchewan, a newspaper publisher, asked the court if he might stand to testify. He explained that such a custom was "compulsory" in his native land.

He said he met a William Marshall in Vancouver, in August, 1930, and from then on "couldn't shake him off." He identified Marshall as Noble John Moore, who pleaded guilty at the outset of the trial.

POCKETBOOK SWINDLE

Then Bray related the beginning of the "pocketbook" swindle, starting out:

"Mr. Marshall, at lunch apologized for stepping on my wife's toe." Mrs. Mayme Staley, sitting among the spectators, smiled sympathetically.

The same trick had been pulled on her and she was the first witness to tell the jury about it.

Paisley Ranch Sold

Real estate experts report that an agreement for the sale of the 800-acre estate and ranch owned by the late Scott Hayes has been reached. Paisley was purchased in 1920 as virtually open land for $11,000 and has been built into a lovely ranch with a stable of nearly twenty horses. These include a number of extraordinary thoroughbred race horses. Among them is the brilliant Australian-bred four year old, Sundowner, winner of the Independence Cup. It is rumored that the price of nearly $2,000,000 includes the Paisley horses.

Society Abuzz as Duke Heiress Romances With New Flame

Doris and Socialite Banker Believed To Be Serious

By DAVID P. SENTNER

NEW YORK, July 8, (INS).—Doris Duke and "Jimmy" H. R. Cromwell are romancing again—and this time it may be serious.

This was the hors d'oeuvre de gossip being dished out in Newport Bar Harbor and Southampton.

The companionship of the 23 year old tobacco heiress and the 37 year old son of Mrs. Edward T. Stotesbury languished about a year ago.

In the last month it has had a renaissance. Doris and Jimmy were together at the Carnera-Baer title boxing bout. They have been seen frequently in the Casino at Central Park and at quiet corners in Park avenue haunts.

INVITED TO MANSION
And Cromwell has been invited to the opening of the Duke mansion, in Newport.

Several years ago the paths of Jimmy and Doris crossed abroad and they were seen together considerably in the social playgrounds of Europe. Doris, at the time, was traveling with her mother, Mrs. James B. Duke, and Jimmy was with his mother, Mrs. Stotesbury, wife of a partner of J.P. Morgan, and one of the recognized leaders of American society, is said to approve of the courtship being conducted by her son.

And the Philadelphia chatelaine is generally hard to please. For instance, guests at the home of Mrs. Stotesbury have their visit completely charted for them.

FINAL SCHEDULE
Upon arriving in their suite they find a time schedule including such notation as:

"Mrs. Stotesbury will see you at 10 a.m. for fifteen minutes."
"I have spent a weekend with Queen Mary at Windsor Castle and her majesty never showed such organization," said one guest afterwards.

Cromwell is an excellent amateur boxer. He is a banker and an economic philosopher. He recently wrote "The Voice of Young America." He is divorced from Delphine Dodge, automobile heiress, now the wife of Raymond T. Baker. He has a 9 year old daughter, Christine Cromwell, whose custody was awarded to his former wife.

Tie and Tongue Save Motorist From Fine

LUDLOW, Mass., July 8, (AP).—Ellis Goldberg's eloquence cost him a new necktie, but may have saved him a fine.

Accused of a traffic violation, Goldberg made an eloquent plea for mercy in town court. As he orated he moved closer and closer to the bench. At the climax of his appeal, his necktie caught in the electric fan.

It was whipped to ribbons, but a policeman rescued Goldberg. The judge placed the case on file.

DEADLINE NEAR IN RODEO GIRL CONTEST

The last roundup for entrants in the Sweetheart of the Salinas Rodeo contest is scheduled for tomorrow.

With this last call Mayor Rossi's committee announced that the final selection for San Francisco's representative would be made the latter part of this week.

Many pretty and talented daughters of the city by the Golden Gate have been entered, but there is still equal chance for those who can qualify and who phone the rodeo editor, The Call-Bulletin, DOuglas 7070, before noon tomorrow.

The girl who will carry away the honors must be a typical outdoor San Franciscan, able to ride, be adept at sports, have beauty, personality and be between the ages of 16 to 23.

The title "San Francisco's Sweetheart of the Salinas Rodeo," when won, will begin two weeks of gala fun for the lucky girl. She will be picturesquely outfitted for her appearance at Salinas—and if she wins the title "California's Sweetheart" at the Salinas competition, a glamorous vacation awaits her.

This vacation is for the winner and a chaperon and includes a steamer trip to New York via the Panama canal and then by rail to the Chicago World's Fair, thence home to San Francisco.

San Francisco has never won the coveted honor of having its entry run away with the first prize, and this year the mayor's committee is intent upon getting that "California's Sweetheart" title for a San Francisco lass.

Any girl who feels she can compete is requested to get in touch with the Call-Bulletin rodeo editor today!

JOHN D. QUILTS BED FOR DAY

LAKEWOOD, N.J., July 8, (AP).—John D. Rockefeller, who left his bed yesterday for a quiet observance of his ninety-fifth birthday, resumed today his calm routine of living.

The venerable industrialist, the townsfolk observed, broke a habit of fifteen years' standing by remaining at Golf House here for his birthday instead of receiving congratulations at his Pocantico Hills estate.

Rockefeller, an authoritative source disclosed, has remained in bed almost constantly for two weeks, arising yesterday for the first appreciable period since the weekend of June 24th.

It was learned that last Friday a physician from New York city came by train to remain with Rockefeller for several hours. When at Lakewood the industrialist is usually visited occasionally by Dr. Robert Buermann.

IN BEAUTY'S BOWER

By HELEN FOLLETT

The feminine figure is back to normal. It has a rounded slenderness, isn't cursed with an extra pound. To have no hips at all is no reason for burrowing, there should be graceful streaming from the waist outward to center of hip, from center of hip to thigh. Because of the difference in the bony structure of the body there can be no exact standard weights and measurements. If proportions are good, silhouette graceful, a little extra avoirdupois doesn't do a bit of harm.

Keep in mind this fact: It isn't so much what you wear as how you wear it that makes for smartness and distinction. If a woman has a good figure, carries herself splendidly, she looks adorable in a 59¢ kitchen apron.

The Paris model that costs a small fortune is nothing but dry goods on a woman whose shoulder are rounded, chest caved in, posture graceless and inert.

Films To Carry 'Certificate of Purity'

HOLLYWOOD, July 8, (INS).—With Will Hays, "movie czar," due here tonight from New York, the major producing studios of Hollywood today set in motion the machinery by which movies will be "laundered" in the future.

Hereafter, it was announced, all films must carry a "certificate of purity."

In the hands of Joseph I. Breen, first assistant to Hays, will rest the responsibility for making movies conform to high moral standards.

No producer is exempt from Breen's veto save to the full board of directors of the Association of Motion Picture Producers in New York.

It may surprise them to know it, but Cecil B. de Mille blames the shortage of competent acting material upon the heads of the great American universities and colleges. The director has just passed the buck in letters to sixteen big shots in the world of education.

"What we need is improved methods of teaching English," says de Mille. "American youth apparently doesn't know what a consonant is. They talk and all you hear is a string of vowels. Slang adds to the complications. The word yes has practically been supplanted by 'yeah'."

4 WOMEN ON JURY TO TRY HICKMAN

SLAIN GIRL'S BROTHER IN COURTROOM

Aides of Suspect Declare They'll Not Try to Make Shifts in Jury

A jury of four women and eight men was selected today and began hearing testimony to decide the fate of Millard Hickman, 45 year old engineer, for the alleged murder of Louise Jeppesen.

Hickman maintained his serenity as the tribunal was selected, in spite of the fact that nearby him sat Severen Jeppesen, the man who swore to avenge the death of his "kid sister."

Attorney Harry McKenzie called for a recess shortly after the jury was completed and declared he planned no changes in the personnel.

HERE IS THE JURY

Those chosen for jury duty are:
Miss Georgia Simon, 1467 Twenty-second street.

Norman L. McKinnon, 1016 Noe street.
Mrs. Augusta Rosenthal, 80 Seventh avenue.

Clifford Carroll, 250 Dolores street.
Walter Brunette, engineer, 140 Julian Avenue.

John Anderson, 1124 Florida street.
Frank Woodmansee, 840 Geary street.

Mrs. Rose Miller, 1426 Florida street.
Henry O'Klein, 1 Twelfth avenue.

Fred M. Campbell, 424 Octavia street.
Mrs. Monique Croke, 1642 Ellis street.

Harry Beecroft, 2395 Pacific avenue.
With Severen Jeppesen from Utah were Jeppesen's wife and Mr. and Mrs. A.V. Dunkley.

Mrs. Dunkley is a sister of the murdered girl.

Alternates were Mrs. Sadie Blank, 1148 Fell street and Charles Antrim, an advertising man of Edgell avenue.

FIRST WITNESS

Mrs. H.N. Huish, 808 Twenty-first street is expected to be the first witness.

Next will be the autopsy surgeon, Dr. Gordon Halsey, who examined the body shortly after it was found and possibly, he said, if there is time he will call John G. Gentry, aged employee of a riding academy, who made the gruesome find in a Golden Gate tunnel May 13.

It was emphasized by the McKenzie brothers, Harry and Edwin, defense attorneys, that they want a jury that will not

JUNE SETS CAR MAKE RECORD

NEW YORK, N.Y., (AP).—Production of automobiles in the United States and Canada during June totaled 328,000 cars and trucks, it was estimated today by the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce. The estimates for June represents the highest figure for that month since 1930 and compares with the 351,802 units produced in May and 257,613 in June, 1933.

Including the June estimate, production for the first half of the year amounted to 1,802,442 units, against 1,031,839 for the like period last year.

Nudism, Skimpy Swim Suits

Worry Textile Makers

By BERNARD S. O'HARA
Associated Press Financial Writer

NEW YORK, N.Y., July 9 (AP).—Certain textile interests are a bit annoyed at the apparent popularity of various fads which are tending to cut down the per capita consumption of cotton, silk, rayon and the like.

Nudism, of course, heads the list of practices and customs upon which the manufacturers of clothing fabrics bestow their most severe frowns. Neither do they like to read or hear that some of the prominent male movie stars are in the habit of going about sans undershirts.

The textile people are pained also by the more tolerant attitude of police authorities toward the topless bathing suit for men. Until recently at beach resorts in the New York metropolitan area at least, the abbreviated bathing suit when sheathing the male form, was persona non grata to the official censors of bathing attire.

Wall street interests identified with textile manufacturing say it would be a great thing for the industry if the nudists and other skimpy users could be induced to return to their original clothes habits. But it is feared that the faddists are quite as deaf to the wishes of the cloth makers as were the Chinese when they were entreated years ago to add an extra inch of fabric to their shirts so that cotton growers could have a market for a few hundred thousand more bales of the staple.

WIDOW SPIDERS ELUDE POISON

SACRAMENTO, July 9 (AP).—State department of agriculture entomologists think the old fashioned broom is the best destroyer of the poisonous black widow spider. They made this statement today and called attention to the fact that pest exterminators are going about offering to sell their services to clean out black widow spiders by means of an insecticidal dust.

Declaring such dusts are probably worthless unless a direct hit be made, and even then the result is in doubt, the entomologists pointed out, that when a spider finds anything in its web it doesn't like, it often cuts the strands or moves out and spins a new one.

They said spiders feed on living insects and are not subject to any stomach poison.

Unidentified Body Discovered At Point Lobos

An unidentified corpse was found clinging to the rocks near Point Lobos late Sunday night. The body has been brought to the Coroner's Office, but so far no official cause of death has been determined. The corpse is that of a Caucasian male, approximately 50 years old.

Car Locates Boy

A young couple, visiting San Francisco from their Humboldt farm were driving in the area where they'd last seen their young son, but neglected to use the hand-brake. The runaway vehicle not only ended up against a brick wall, but their son saw and recognized the car, crawled in and fell asleep, where his parents found him soon thereafter.

Bullets Fly On Potrero Street

Several unidentified gunmen exchanged shots on the 1200 block of Potrero yesterday. Neighbors who heard the gun shots summoned police, but by the time they arrived there was no one remaining at the scene.

STRIKE LEADER TESTIFIES

Asserting that joint operation of a hiring hall would make it in reality a hall controlled entirely by the employers, Harry Bridges, chairman of the joint marine strike committee was a witness before the National Longshore Board today.

"In speaking for the port of San Francisco, I will tell you a few things peculiar to the port. Because of its peculiar position, other locals in other ports will be influenced by what is done here.

"Mr. Petersen has told you of conditions up to the strike. I wish to make a few statements of facts on the strike and before the date of the strike. I want to make this clear to the board and the public.

"During March and April of this year demands of the strikers were being mediated. In that entire time the employers have made no single concession of importance. The men have made a number of concessions and have proved their willingness to settle the strike.

"The ship owners have only one object, the destruction of the right of labor to organize.

"Our original demands were:

RENOWNED MUSICIAN MURDERED

Jackson de Young, known to his fans as "The Marquis," was brutally murdered yesterday as he was making a record at the Salsbury Recording Studio. His body was discovered yesterday afternoon by an operative of the Continental Detective Agency whose identity the police are withholding. Police report that de Young appears to have been shot at close range after a struggle.

Stanley Mellin, a recording engineer employed at the studio was found bound and unconscious in offices near the studio. Mellin described the circumstances:

"The Marquis and I were doing a preliminary recording of his sax solo on a master disk when I left to answer the phone. Some guy with a mask hit me just as I was returning to the sound room. I didn't hear anything until that private dick woke me up."

Jackson de Young was an up-and-coming star of the Jazz Age. Only last week his performances in New York's famous Willow Club ignited a blaze of popular acclaim. Mr. Hal Salsbury, the owner of the studio, and the man who many accredited with promoting de Young's considerable music-making talents was shocked by the crime. He said:

"I have known the Marquis for years and I am desolated by this crime. We've worked together for so long. There really is no way to express the loss I feel. It will be impossible to replace him. I think his music was just finding a new level and we had planned so much!"

Asked who he thought may have committed such a crime, Salsbury could only speculate:

"I can't think of anyone who would want to do Jackson in. Everybody loved him. Of course, someone may have had a personal motive. Some guys must have been jealous of his success, but what could they get out of that? I can't understand it."

Police are seeking public assistance in cracking the case. They are particularly anxious to question Luella Davis, believed to be de Young's girlfriend.

ARBITRATION HELD WAY TO PEACE

Secretary Perkins Declares Sympathy Move Could Be Averted by Mediation

WASHINGTON, July 9 (AP).—Secretary Perkins indicated today she felt the San Francisco maritime strike could be settled if all the sympathy strikes of nine other unions could be submitted to arbitration.

The labor secretary said she believed the longshoremen and their employers would agree to the three-point settlement program submitted by mediators several weeks ago.

That proposal provided for recognition of the union, submission of all questions of hours and wages to arbitration and joint control of hiring halls by employers and employees.

The union rejected the settlement at that time because it wanted exclusive control of the hiring halls.

"I have some belief that if all the grievances of the unions on sympathy strike could be submitted to arbitration," Miss Perkins said, "They would be settled."

HOBSON HAILS DOPE PACT

NEW YORK, N.Y., (AP).—Admiral Richard Pearson Hobson, hero of the Merrimac and world foe of the narcotic drug traffic, today hailed a year's operation of the Geneva prohibitory convention as a boon to all nations.

As a result of the treaty, sharply restricting manufacture of such drugs, the bootleg price of them in this country has leaped 500 per cent, he said.

He spoke at a celebration of the World Narcotic Defense Association's first anniversary held at the Waldorf-Astoria. Other speakers at the meeting highly praised the lead taken by the government of Turkey in making the manufacture, export and import of narcotic drugs a state monopoly.

Representative Hamilton Fish Jr. scored Great Britain for alleged laxity in the war on the opium trade.

SISTER OF SLAIN GIRL FACES HICKMAN

hold it against a man—a married man with two adolescent daughters—because he "played around" with other women.

MORAL QUESTIONS

And from the questions propounded prospective jurors by the defense attorneys, it was indicated that the private life and the frailties of the girl Hickman is accused of murdering also will be bared to the jury that is to decide Hickman's fate.

"Admitting the defendant, Mr. Hickman, was guilty of a breach of good morals a few hours before Miss Louise Jeppesen was slain, would that fact cause you to think him guilty of the murder?" every prospective juror was asked by the defense attorneys.

Without exception the answers were that what happened between Hickman and the murdered 20 year old Utah-born girl in Hickman's hotel room prior to the slaying—any departure from accepted moral standards—would not affect the minds of the jurors.

Hickman, confined in prison since the day of the murder, already shows the effects of his confinement.

His face is pale to the point of sallowness and his hands with their strong, capable "mechanic's" fingers seem bloodless. Their color, or lack of color, is an odd shade of white—fish belly white—while the finger-nails, immaculately manicured, seem to have no color at all.

Those who expected to see Hickman, charged with the most brutal murder in the history of San Francisco, come into court cringing and nervous, got a surprise.

"Its proposal would put power in the hands of employers. Men would be driven out of the industry through the joint hall. The joint hall, the so-called concession of employers, is in reality a Fink hall, and it is known as such up and down the coast."

"What do you mean Fink?" asked Archbishop Hanna.

"It is merely an expression used by scabbing men."

"These final halls as operated by the shipowners have established a blacklist against union men and show a decided tendency in discriminating against regular members of the union."

"The 'joint hiring hall,' in my estimation, prevents the right of union men to organize without discrimination. The hiring halls with full control by the unions would be a safeguard and would be some measure of protest against the present system on the waterfront."

SHUCKS! SAYS GILBERT, FED UP ON SHARKS

HOLLYWOOD, July 9 (INS).—Friends of John Gilbert were chuckling today over the screen star's narrow escape from sharks.

But it was no laughing matter aboard the location ship, the Ruth Alexander, moored in Catalina Channel, where Gilbert is enacting a star marine role.

Gilbert, for refreshment's sake, took a dip outside. Well, mates, in no time at all the deck watch sang out "shark, ho!" and sure enough there was that sinister triangular fin circling around the romantic lead as he swam.

You can imagine the producer's anxiety with all that footage to be shot again if the shark got John. So he called a machine gunner who happened to be in the sequence, and a few well-directed bursts covered Gilbert's retreat to the ship.

On the deck is a good sized tank made of canvas, rigged up for a rescue scene.

Gilbert thought he'd finish his swim, so into the tank he plopped.

Sailors filling the tank from overside didn't notice they dipped up another shark from the ocean, but Gilbert did.

And although the second shark was only 18 inches long, the romantic lead immediately had enough of sharks for one day. He went to his cabin and got dressed.

POLICE SEEK ESCAPED LUNATIC IN KILLING OF MARQUIS

Investigators have reason to believe that Topaz Munro, a mental patient who escaped from the Napa State Hospital last week, may be the murderer of Jackson de Young who was found slain on Monday. Police learned yesterday that Munro and de Young had been acquainted prior to Munro's hospitalization. One investigator speculated that Munro may have escaped in order to seek revenge against de Young on a personal grudge.

Munro once played piano with de Young, but soon after the publication of the first commercially successful songs by "The Marquis," they had a falling out. According to a friend of the deceased, Munro and de Young argued frequently about the relative importance of the piano and saxophone in their performances. It was also rumored at the time that there had been accusations that Munro had taken to using drugs, something de Young would not tolerate.

MILL VALLEY GIRL WED

Coming as a surprise to friends in San Francisco, news was announced today of the wedding of Miss Jean Keeney, and Andrew J. Swedland, 27, state representative of a large Eastern dry goods company.

The couple, wed at a quiet Reno ceremony Saturday, are expected to return to this city today after spending a two day honeymoon at Lake Tahoe.

Relatives and friends of the couple have prepared an apartment for them in the Marina district and plan a "housewarming" party to greet them on their return tonight.

Miss Swedland is widely known in Mill Valley, where she resided with her family and where she appeared in several amateur theatricals.

THE WORK OF ALAMEDA'S TALENTED Bruton sisters is attracting much attention at the Fleishhacker "Mother" house near the Fleishhacker zoo.

The Misses Bruton, Helen, Margaret and Esther, are executing two exquisite mosaics in the patio of the "Mother" house near its front door.

Miss Helen Bruton is the designer for the panels, one of which shows St Francis of Assisi with the birds and the happy children at play—both appropriate to the setting, for the house is the rendezvous for mothers and children, and birds are near at hand.

The Misses Bruton, Alameda born and educated, studied at the Art Student League in New York City. The mosaics on which they are now engaged are simple and dignified and greatly enhance the facade of the house, the gift of the Fleishhacker family to San Francisco in memory of their mother.

Clean Films Urged By Mrs. Roosevelt

CHICAGO, July 9 (INS).—An early visit to the art exhibit being held in conjunction with a Century of Progress, a hasty lunch and Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt planned to continue her motor trip westward today after a brief but busy visit in Chicago.

In the role of a news commentator, Mrs. Roosevelt made the first of a series of five commercial broadcasts from the stage of the Globe Theater, in the village of Merrie England at a Century of Progress last night. Speaking over a nation-wide network, the country's first lady heartily endorsed the nation-wide campaign to purge motion pictures of indecency.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEEKMAN
REGRETS

Dear Mrs. Beekman:
Having received through a second person an invitation to a shower for a bride-to-be, I am at a loss as to how I should decline this very casual invitation. The shower is to be given by the mother and sister of the bride-to-be. For some time I have been under the impression that it was not just the right thing for the family of the bride to make a bid for presents in this way. Won't you please let me know if I am wrong?

You are thoroughly right about the impression you have that it is not considered the best form for the close relatives of the bride-to-be to plan the bridal shower. And you have used the perfect expression for it, "Making a bid for presents." The example you give here is especially obvious, since you didn't even get a direct invitation, just a "casual" invitation through someone who isn't a hostess.

I hope that, since you apparently have no interest in attending this shower, you regretted the invitation as it was "extended" to you. If you left it indefinite, you might write a note to the person who invited you, saying that you are unable to accept the invitation. Since this person did the inviting, she would be the one to receive your "regret."

(Mrs. Beekman will be glad to answer questions on Good Manners submitted by readers)

'TARZAN CURSED ME,' SAYS VELEZ

DIVORCE SUIT HITS MOVIE LOVE NEST

Flying Furniture and Language Charged by Star in Formal Complaint

"EEEE—ah, eeee-ah, ahee-ah!"

Thus did the great silent man of the screen break his silence and the furniture simultaneously.

At least that is the complaint of Lupe Velez, who filed suit for divorce today from Johnny ("Tarzan") Weissmuller, according to Associated Press dispatches from Los Angeles.

Lupe, in her complaint, says "her Johnnie" found his voice suddenly and "cursed, swore and threatened his wife," and, alleging cruelty, wants to cease being Tarzan's mate.

"EEEE—ah, eeee-ah, ahee-ah!"

That was "Tarzan" Weissmuller's elephant love call on the screen, but his wife says his love call off the screen was more understandable, if less colorful.

STRUCK BY FURNITURE

Furthermore, Miss Velez alleges Johnny did his screen acrobatics in the Weissmuller-Velez living room, with disastrous results to the furniture and bruises to Lupe, who wasn't as struck by his performance as by broken pieces of chairs.

So Johnny moved into the Hollywood Athletic Club Monday.

And Lupe stayed at home in Beverly Hills.

Last night they went to the prize fights but they kept the fighters between them. Johnny was on one side of the ring, Lupe on the other.

And when his favorite landed a wallop, Johnny let out his elephant call:

"EEEE—ah, eeee-ah, ahee-ah!"

But Lupe, who used to sit beside him at the fights and chime in with a feminine elephant call of her own just sat and glared. She told reporters she was enjoying the fight.

"BEST OF FRIENDS"

"Johnny and I will be the very best of friends," the fiery Mexican actress said, sweetly.

Her divorce complaint today said:

"The conduct of the defendant in the presence of strangers and friends made the plaintiff ill and nervous and caused great grief and mental suffering."

As a result, Lupe alleges she could not perform in the movies to the satisfaction of her employers.

Attorney Neil S. McCarthy's complaint declared Johnny "broke and destroyed furniture in the home and some of the articles struck the plaintiff and caused severe cuts and lacerations."

The divorce ends one of Hollywood's most tempestuous marriages. The former swimming champion and portrayer of jungle wildmen married the actress October 8, 1933, in Las Vegas. Their marriage has been fraught with separations and reunions.

Lupe announced last night she and Johnny had reached the parting of the ways and that she would bring suit for divorce, but only last Saturday she and her husband came back from an eastern trip promising to "scratch out plenty of eyes if anybody say me and Johnny bust up."

Emphatically denying the possibility at that time of divorce, Lupe said:

"I no like to be tough guy, but some day I get mad. It give me goose flesh. We come east, Johnny stop off in Washington to play golf, and some papers say we bust up. Johnny, on his way back here, see these papers, and he say what the h—l is thees?" But once more in Hollywood, the couple began disagreeing.

France Builds 'Ring of Steel' To Curb German Aims

By H.R. KNICKERBOCKER

Staff Correspondent International News

BERLIN, July 11.—The French Army has been heavily reinforced on the German frontier. Louis Barthou, French foreign minister in London appears already to have gained considerable English sympathy for his plan to weave a steel net around Germany.

These two facts today remained depressing reflections for this country after twelve days have passed without the public's learning any new details of the plot which cost the lives of an unknown number of Germans and without any lists of the dead.

But of the two major facts, the second is by far the more important. The French army's frontier reinforcements were pre-

LIQUOR STORES SWINDLED

Hundreds of retail liquor dealers of San Francisco are being victimized by bootleggers posing as wholesalers, said G.H. Maloney, chief of the alcohol tax unit, today.

Agents of the bureau seized three cases of illegal gin at a liquor store near Market and Jones street. No arrests were made as the proprietor, according to Maloney, proved he had purchased the gin in good faith.

"These bootleggers, posing as wholesalers, have purchased quantities of the old short bottles of the prohibition era," Maloney said. "They have made their own liquor, are using spurious internal revenue stamps and for the last few months have sold large quantities of liquor to unsuspecting retailers."

Speed Search for Drug Store Holdup

A search was under way today for an unidentified burglar who robbed a drug store at 5199 Geary street last night and escaped with $25.60, according to police report.

James Cunningham, 515 Sixteenth avenue, owner of the store told police that the man purchased a magazine and when Cunningham turned to make change, a gun was placed against his back. He was forced into the rear room while the bandit rifled the cash register.

Dee on Stand Tells How Louise Met Hickman; State Claims Time Point

Three women who admit they have been attacked in Golden Gate Park during recent months are ready to testify to save the life of Millard Hickman, charged with the fiendish murder of Louise Jeppesen, it developed today.

Defense Attorney Harry McKenzie declared that if the court will allow he will put the surprise trio of witnesses on the stand to tell that they were victims of brutal attacks similar, in many respects, to that which snuffed out the life of the frail Louise.

DEFENDS MOVE

Admitting that such procedure would be new in California courts, the attorney declared that his move would be no more far fetched than the circumstantial evidence on which the state is attempting to hang his client.

Meantime, the prosecution scored again while questioning Thomas Dee, president of Dee Engineering Company and member of the gay party that preceded the murder, when it caught the engineer in a change in the party time.

It is believed that the time element may prove whether Hickman must hang or go free.

Dee told Prosecutor Peter J. Mullins on the stand that he was in his bed after the party at 3:30 a.m. or "some time later."

Mullins then produced previous testimony in which the engineer had claimed that he was in bed "before 3 a.m."

Asked why the change on so important a point, Dee answered:

"Well, you asked most of the questions and I answered them."

He said that he had not got over the effects of the party when questioned before.

Led step by step over the details of his acquaintance with the murdered girl and Hickman, Dee said that he had been a close

PROBE CAMPUS BEAUTY DEATH

NORMAN, Okla., July 10 (AP).—Belief that Marion Mills, 20 year old campus beauty queen at the University of Oklahoma, died as the result of an attempt to prevent motherhood was expressed today by County Attorney Paul Updegraff.

He said he based his theory, pending a post mortem report, upon the story of Mrs. Hazel Brown, cook for the Delta Upsilon fraternity, in whose apartment the girl's body was found yesterday afternoon, shortly after Neal Meyers, a pharmacist student, had summoned a physician and then disappeared.

Mrs. Brown, said Updegraff, admitted that Miss Mills, the daughter of Elbert M. Mills, an associate professor at the university, had been taking a "quack" medical preparation.

Dr. E.F. Stephens, summoned to the house said his examination failed to disclose the cause of death. He found the girl dead, fully clothed, across a bed when he arrived at the Brown home late yesterday afternoon. There were no marks of violence, no sign of heart disease.

At El Reno, home of Meyers, his mother, Mrs. P.B. Meyers, said she had learned definitely that he and Miss Mills had been secretly married. She did not know, however, where or when the ceremony had taken place.

The father of the 21 year old student, Dr. P.B. Meyers, expressed the belief that Neal still is in town and will appear when he recovers from panic.

WALKOUT IN EAST BAY LOOMS

General Strike Ordered if S.F. Mediators Fail Today

Unless an agreement is reached in the San Francisco longshore conferences today, a general strike has been ordered in Alameda County at midnight tonight.

This decision was made at a meeting of the strike strategy committee of the Alameda County Central Labor Council.

Seventy-nine unions are affected by the order.

Meanwhile, Carmen's Union, Division 1004, composed of employees of the Market Street Railway, took a general strike vote and the ballots were being counted today, according to William Thompson, president.

Results of the poll will be given to the Labor Council's strike strategy committee of seven and announced by that group, Thompson said.

"If anyone thinks this is a bluff, he is mistaken," William A. Spooner, secretary and business manager of the council, said in announcing the East Bay decision. "We are most serious and adamant in our demands."

In event of the walkout, Spooner said it was decided public health agencies and hospitals will be protected.

It has not been definitely decided, he said, Cont'd on page two, column one.

POSTAGE STAMP RING EXPOSED

Police yesterday got a break in their investigation of a recently discovered counterfeit postage stamp operation here. Their raid of a house on Julian avenue netted fraudulent stamps with cover values of more than $5,000. Police were disappointed to find neither the printing presses used nor the counterfeit engraving plates. The house was deserted when the police arrived, and no arrests have been made.

The raid was the result of an anonymous telephone call, and the police have no clue as to the identity or the motivations of the tipster. San Francisco Police would give no inventory or details of the case pending the arrival of Federal Postal officials.

The address is registered to a Mr. Booker Ramey, a negro, described by his neighbors as quiet and withdrawn. He often has guests, but rarely ventures outside his house. He was last seen leaving his home yesterday morning.

Seen and Heard in San Francisco's Hotel Lobbies

LIB CURTISS, internationally famous marine salvage expert, is a guest at the Palace Hotel. He is connected with the firm of Merritt, Chapman and Scott of New York.

Curtiss declares he is "almost a man without a country" because of his constant travelling in far corners of all the seas where his salvage work takes him. He will remain here several weeks before continuing his journey to the Far East where, he said, several "jobs" await him.

S. DE WITT CLOUGH, president of the Abbot Laboratories of Chicago, is at the Palace to attend the Western sales conference of his company. A novel note was introduced when several executives of the firm in New York and Chicago and one in Italy addressed the conference via telephone. The convention closes today.

friend of the defendant for a long time.

"Did you ever attend any parties with Hickman?" he was asked.

Dee admitted that he "had partied" with the marine engineer on many occasions following the separation of Hickman from his wife.

Dee told the court that he could not remember who had introduced him to Louise Jeppesen, but that shortly after he had met her she asked him to try and get her a job.

It was this request, he told Mullins, that led up to a gay party in Hickman's suite at the King George Hotel, from which Louise went to her horrible doom.

He took the girl to Hickman thinking that the engineer, who often favored his firm in awarding ship repair jobs, might be able to find a place for her. It was this introduction that led up to the fatal party, the witness testified.

"RELUCTANT WITNESS"

Charged by Mullins with being a very reluctant witness, Dee said that Hickman called him the evening of May 12 and invited him to attend a dinner party in his hotel suite.

He asked Hickman if there was to be a feminine companion for him and was told no, he said.

He then arranged with Blanche McKay, the so-called "blonde alibi witness" he said he had met the day before, to accompany him to the party.

When they arrived, he testified, the little Ogden girl who was to die so horribly later, was preparing dinner. She was having trouble making ice cream, he said, and while she was working in the kitchen, the other three had several cocktails in the living room.

After dinner the four of them went to an uptown cafe to dance, and he left with Blanche McKay after the others had decided to return to Hickman's apartment.

A new angle in criminal trials has cropped out during the case in that after two days of testimony not one objection has been raised by the attorneys of either side.

At the same time, the Building Trades Council of Alameda County, comprising 27 locals, ordered an immediate strike vote. Most of the locals, it was reported, have already voted for a walkout, and several more are slated to vote tonight.

NO GAS DELIVERIES

Oil refineries at Martinez announced today that they are preparing to abandon gasoline deliveries in the bay district, in case of a strike. All truck drivers are members of unions, and no effort will be made to run picket lines.

Record loads of gasoline were leaving the refineries as they sought to provide customers with enough to last for some time.

In San Francisco today, salvos of shots from the National Guard rifles rang out again on the waterfront and one I.L.A. man was beaten in Daly City. The man beaten, Herman Thies, was treated at Alemany Hospital for contusions and booked as intoxicated.

Thies has been arrested twice since the waterfront strike started; once on May 12 for rioting on the Embarcadero and once on June 11 for carrying concealed weapons.

IGNORE 'HALT!'

Police reported today that a National Guard sentry had fired several shots at two men who refused to halt at Second and Berry streets when commanded to stop.

A free-for-all battle was staged near Oakland airport when eight negro strike-breakers were attacked by a crowd of fifty strikers.

Working feverishly to end the disastrous strike before tonight, the President's board planned to resume formal hearing in the Post Office building today.

FRANCE BUILDS RING OF STEEL ON BORDER

cautionary measures and no other sober observer believes France ready to attack Germany this moment.

Barthou's seemingly successful diplomatic labors appear to Germany's leaders today much more dangerous. For if Barthou succeeds with his plan Germany will be bound hand and foot so thoroughly that in the eyes of France no preventative war will be necessary in order to render her harmless.

FACT WITH SOVIET AS NEW GUARANTEE

International News Service learned today that Barthou's complete plan consists of a renewal of the old, or "West," Locarno pact, with the Soviet Union as a new guarantor of the Franco-German frontier.

But that will suit France just as well, as Germany's refusal to enter the pact will stamp her, according to French opinion, as having aggressive intentions.

Germany, on the other hand, realizes that Barthou's plan is a cleverly disguised but effective net of steel around her border. Delcasse, pre-war French diplomat, forced his famous "ring of steel" around Germany. Barthou's ring is better than a single band. It is a net proposing to include not only Germany's immediate neighbor, but her neighbors' neighbors in a web of bayonets pointed at this country.

WOULD BRING DOWN ALL EUROPE ON HER

Its success would mean the indefinite perpetuation of that status quo laid down in the Versailles treaty. Germany could not move to extend her frontiers without bringing down all Europe on her head.

This looks bad to Germany today, but even if successful in lining up England, he has to get Poland's consent to the East Locarno and Italy's consent to the Mediterranean pact. Neither country has been favorable to France's bloc policy.

Hitler is nervous today, but old privy councilors of the German foreign office are watching Barthou and privately commenting, "Let the old man wear himself out. He will soon run out of wind."

The 1936 Olympic Games It Is Time to Prepare Now

By OSCAR NELSON

A little known but efficient coach of the bay region is Al Kallunki, who has been directing swimming at various Oakland clubs for nine years and turning out more than his share of champions.

His proteges include a young miss, Dorothy Sundby, who, they say, has more prospects than Helene Madison.

Kallunki has closed shop in Oakland for the summer, the recent epidemic having put the swimming business on the bum locally, and is returning to his home in Portland where he will coach for the next few months.

On leaving, Kallunki fired a few shots concerning the United States and the 1936 Olympic Games which principally apply to swimming but concern all sports.

NO WORRY ABOUT EATING

"Our Nordic prophets are bewailing the fact that Japan took us to the cleaners in 1932, but the way things look now, that's nothing compared to what will happen in Berlin," Kallunki said.

"We need not expect anything from members of the last Olympic team. Buster Crabbe, our best man, is in the movies; Helene Madison has turned pro and Eleanor Holm is in the movies.

"Our local stars of the past few years are all working and to be a champion swimmer you can't work. You have to keep swimming. That's the secret of the phenomenal success of the Japanese. They know how to train and they don't allow their stars to be molested much by such things as bread winning.

"They let the coaches worry about the living," he concluded.

The 1934 season is over and it is time to begin thinking about the Games of 1936.

MOVIE MOGALS MEET TO LIFT FILM MORALS

HOLLYWOOD, July 10, (INS).—To outline a "new moral deal" for the $2,000,000,000 motion picture industry, eleven major studio heads today met in a closed session at the offices of the Association of Motion Picture Producers of America with Will F. Hays, "Czar of Film," and Joseph I. Breen, recently invested with absolute powers as dictator of screen morals.

FACE ULTIMATUM

The movie producers must face the ultimatum of the Legion of Decency, which started under Roman Catholic auspices and rapidly spread to Protestant and Jewish faiths:

"Produce clean films or face financial ruin."

The Legion of Decency is prepared to back its edicts with a boycott. Already exhibitors of "blacklisted" films have felt the pinch of diminishing crowds, and their clamors to the Hollywood producers, augmented by the threats of church leaders, have thrown Hollywood into a furore.

CUSTOMER IS RIGHT

Hays, who arrived here dramatically on Monday, has refused to comment on the demands for his resignation.

"He has made it plain, and he is seeking again to make it plain to film executives, that the Producers' Association's attitude is that the customer is right—the customer in this case being the voice of the combined churches.

HOLLYWOOD, July 10 (AP).—Cecil B. de Mille, director, said today the film industry would "clean house" in a hurry but that danger follows this house cleaning.

"There is grave danger to the industry in this protest by the church and other groups against what they feel are salacious films," said de Mille.

IN THE SOCIAL WHIRL

By Phoebe Newhart

MISS DOROTHY PHINNEY OF SAN Francisco is guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Van Phinney, at Reno. She was one of a party given Tuesday night at State Line Club by Hubert McNoble of Stockton. Others in the group were Miss Harriett Price of Reno, Miss Peggy Robbins of Suisun, Mr. Eric Sutcliffe of San Francisco and Emmett Sewall of Santa Rosa.

The girls were much admired at the smart night club. Miss Phinney wore a gown of black crepe, with a veritable ruff of gardenias about the square corsage. Miss Robbins was in maroon, the gown being fashioned of handkerchief linen and finished at the décolletage with a ruff of white organdy. Miss Price, who has been taking a business course in San Francisco but is at present visiting her home in Reno, wore a gown of white dotted organdy. The distinctive feature of the gown was the cluster of red cherries, which, fastened near the throat, extended downward on the bodice to the waistline.
